

THE TRINITY TRIPOD

New Alcohol Policy In Effect This Week

by David Copland
News Editor

Concerned that weeknight parties were interfering with academics, the administration and SGA approved a new alcohol policy. The policy, which began yesterday, restricts open parties on weeknights and puts constraints on hard bars. The new regulations on student social events abolishes the Security requirement, allowing for student monitors.

"We have to keep in mind the primary mission of the College — which is education," said David Winer, Dean of Students. "I don't want to have policies that detract from formal education. Having large, alcoholic parties during the week detracts from our primary purpose."

SGA President Art Muldoon, who endorsed the policy, explained that he supported it despite some concerns he has over its possible results. Muldoon views weekday parties more as a way for friends to get together after studying than as "blow-out weekday bashes." He hopes that an effective reopening of the Iron Pony Pub will satisfy that need. "I agreed because I don't want the school's academic reputation to be affected by continual partying."

Since the new alcohol policy restricts weekday parties to 100 people, Wednesday and Thursday night clubs at Alpha Delta Phi and Psi Upsilon will be hit hard.

Psi U President Jim Parmelee

said his fraternity will probably go to an invitational system. Muldoon is concerned that the fraternities will become more exclusive and that more parties will be held off campus parties, which will lead to drunk driving.

Bayard Johnson, President of AD, feels some problems will surface, as in any new policy, concerning the weekday party issue. "The administration will have to change the policy to work out the rough edges, and I think their idea of progress is to tighten the reins further as opposed to ten years ago when they would have loosened the policy," said Johnson. "There will still be parties during the week, but the administration will lose their grip on them because they will probably not be registered."

Parmelee also expects some problems to arise with the new policy. "We're going to have to iron out a lot of things," he said. "I hope they're not just trying to trip up the frats."

Winer recognizes the risks of unregistered parties. "I realize people will probably go off campus," he said, "but I don't feel that as a responsible dean and academecian I can continue to foster it here." Winer mentioned that faculty have reported a high absence level at early morning classes on Thursday and Friday.

Continuing an experimental program started last year students who are juniors or seniors, members of the host organization, and who have clean academic and disciplinary records will be construction continues on Vernon St. dorm 10 open in January of '88.

photo by Meryl Levin

WRTC Struck By Vandals

by David Copland
News Editor
and Peter Swanson
Assistant News Editor

Last Tuesday was a busy night for Security. Two students were attacked on Summit Street, WRTC was forced off the air when the station was entered and vandalized, and Security searched the Vernon Street area for two men roaming through the High Rise dorm.

At about 1:00 A.M. two male students returning from the College of William and Mary, a group of five black and Hispanic males on Summit Street, their

One student was struck on the side of the head and suffered temporarily blurred vision, although he did not lose consciousness. The other student was hit in the face. Both were taken to Hartford Hospital's emergency room by Security where they received care for minor injuries. One of the assailants wore a light blue Dodgers jacket.

Director of Security Biagio Rucci does not feel that the Trinity community is in any danger from people "waiting in dark corners to jump on students. What happened last week was just a string of isolated incidents."

A party was held in the eight-room Tuesday night and the doors to Cook had been lodged open. Since the basement of Cook connects to both the Underground and the offices of WRTC, a group of five Hispanics, aged 14-20, were able to enter through the opening and gain access to the Underground and WRTC.

Early in the evening a guard inspecting the Underground had noticed a package of drumsticks left by a student band which often practices there. When he later checked the Underground, the drumsticks were missing. Students reported seeing the youths carrying the drumsticks outside of Cook. They re-entered the dorm and discharged fire extinguishers containing a chemical powder in WRTC.

The DJ for the 7:00 to 10:00 P.M. Alien Rock show left the control room to investigate and was sprayed herself by the chemicals which made her violently ill.

The chemicals were sprayed throughout the offices and the control room, damaging the mixer and transmitting equipment. WRTC went off the air for two days and on Thursday began transmitting

Student Parking Is Reduced

by Sean Dougherty
Tripod Staff Writer

In an effort to accommodate the parking needs of Trinity faculty and staff, students are no longer permitted to park on Summit Street on weekdays during the hours of 8 AM to 9 PM.

"The consensus was that the daily commute of faculty and staff was a greater need than that of the students, who live here," according to Security Director Biagio Rucci.

Security's registration list for faculty and staff cars was badly out of date at the beginning of the summer, and as a result, it was not known exactly how many faculty and staff cars would be on campus. Security surveyed the total number of employees as well as their work locations, and decided to set aside the Summit Street parking for the use of faculty and staff.

175 parking spots on campus are reserved for student parking. These spots lie in the Little, North Campus, and Crescent Street lots. The campus areas that are directly affected by the new allotment are the dorms on the Quad and in South Campus. Rucci feels that the use of the Vernon Street, CPTV, and Ferris lots can absorb most of the spillage.

In an effort to decrease the number of cars on campus, a letter was also sent to all students over the summer requesting that cars only be brought to campus if absolutely necessary. "They'll have parking, but they'll be displaced. We can't accommodate everyone," said Rucci.

On Monday August 31, Security had 37 unregistered cars towed from the Summit Street Parking lot. "Some of the newer employees [who had not registered their cars] were bent out of shape. I just told them that enforcement applies to them too. Everybody has to toe the mark," commented Rucci.

Eleven more cars were towed from the lot behind Austin Arts Center on Tuesday, September 1. The chapel lot was surveyed for violators on Wednesday, but no towing occurred.

Benton Autobody Shop tows most of the cars for Trinity College. Complete Autobody Shop is also used to help tow cars from Summit Street.

"I don't see a great deal of towing in the future. People should be awake by this time. So far we have only towed unregistered cars, not violators. Everyone should be alert to all the signs," said Rucci.

Security is currently computerizing their ticketing procedure, which should make stringent enforcement of the parking regulations easier to implement. Rucci also intends to have fire zones enforced more rigorously, but he noted that students aren't the worst offenders in that area anyway.

Rucci added that the College is open to compromise if it looks like faculty and staff members are not using all of the Summit Street spaces. "We need time to measure the effect of our program. We only have 225 registered cars right now. We know there are more cars than that trying to park on campus. I'll tell you right now if the system needs adjustment we'll do it" said Rucci.

Regarding the safety of the Vernon Street lot, Rucci commented that "It's a lot safer than Summit Street. It is well lit, enclosed by a fence, and we have cameras working down there. On Summit Street you have the Ho-Chi-Minh trail up and down the hill to Zion Street that makes cars parked there a lot more accessible." Minor problems with the zoom function on the cameras on Vernon Street are currently being repaired.

Trinity may also be installing a shuttle bus service to help connect Vernon Street to the rest of the campus. The proposed service would stop at the Vernon Street lot on the hour and the half-hour. Vice President Smith has already approved the program and the College is currently looking into implementation.

Pub Re-opens Under Strict Control

By Sean Dougherty
Tripod Staff Writer

Trinity's campus drinking facility, The Iron Pony Pub, will be re-opening once again on September 21.

The Pub will be open Monday to Thursday from 4:00 P.M. to 1:00 A.M. and from 2:00 P.M. to 6:00 P.M. on Fridays. The Pub will be open on weekends during special occasions such as homecoming.

The Pub operates under a "Service Bar" permit issued by the State of Connecticut. The contract stipulates that waiters and/or waitresses must serve the drinks and that all drinks must stay within a confined area.

The confined area at Trinity will be located in the south end of the Cave, and it will be enclosed by ropes, according to Mather Campus Center Director Jo Ann Pulver. These ropes will not block anyone's view of the television.

A student worker will serve in the restricted area. The worker's responsibility will be to check i.d.'s and make sure that no beer purchased is carried out of the roped-off area.

No one under the age of 21 will be allowed to sit in the restricted area, regardless of whether that person is ordering alcohol or not. Pulver called this rule "an unfortunate part of the permit regulations, but there isn't anything we can do about it. We don't have a restaurant permit. For someone under 21 to sit in the restricted area, he or she would have to have a parent or guardian along."

Pulver warned that enforcement of the legal drinking age will be strict at the Pub. "We are under much more stringent guidelines because we have a Connecticut State Liquor License. We are under greater scrutiny than the campus private institutions."

Josh Bewlay, the Pub supervisor, met Thursday with prospective bartenders. Everyone, including students who worked at the Pub last year, is being interviewed. Bewlay and Pulver are trying to insure that the bartenders they hire will be able to stand up to intimidation by underage students who demand to buy drinks.

When asked how the restriction of weekday parties would affect Pub sales, Pulver responded, "It may increase business a little, but the number of legal drinkers on campus is still so small it can't really make a big difference."

I'M GOING TO BE EMOTIONALLY SCARRED FOR THE REST OF MY LIFE!

INSIDE:

Fall Sports Preview

New Faculty Profiled

New Dorm

News - Commentary

DID YOU GET /titiwrr, OLM/PPY?

Letters

Editorial

Better Relations with Minorities

To the Editor:

There have been several newspaper articles about Trinity College in recent months. The most recent one was a May 18th editorial entitled, "Misreading Trinity's Mission," which acknowledged a need for improvement in several areas, but urged that we feel fortunate to have a school here. I certainly appreciate having been among the first blacks to matriculate there. However, I have been aware of the need for improved relations, with minorities, especially on campus, for some time.

Suggestions have been made to school officials, verbally and through letters, for the past two years. There have been great efforts to enroll more minority students. One of the problems is that the atmosphere is not conducive to good cultural exchanges, so minorities leave. The major point is that white students could have a more positive intercultural learning experience to benefit them more in pursuing their careers as liberal-minded citizens. This is especially true in urban areas, and indeed in a world where non-whites are a majority.

Black and Hispanic people need to be more concerned and involved in several issues being debated. The fact that the campus is gradually being encircled by minorities requires additional efforts for better "Town-Gown" relations. In addition, the Trinity Coalition of Black Students has complained regularly of campus racism.

The most urgent issue was addressed by an editorial in the May 5th edition of the Trinity Tripod, entitled, "An Answer to the Security Problem," which suggested using armed security guards as an option to combat increasing assaults and thefts. I don't think weapons have been used in campus crimes thus far. Let us hope the school uses all other options possible to improve relations with its neighbors without armed security personnel.

Sincerely,
Ralph F. Davis, '83

When members of the Class of 1991 were told that they were the last class which would be able to choose courses from an open curriculum, they heaved a deep sigh of relief — some even applauded. Yet, the implementation of the general education curriculum is long overdue and represents an important step in defining the liberal arts education at Trinity.

Members of next year's freshman class will be required to take five courses, one each from the following academic disciplines:

1. Natural Sciences: from the Biology, Physics or Chemistry departments.
2. Arts: from the Dance, Theatre, Music, or Fine Arts departments.
3. Humanities: from the Classics, English, Religion, History, or Philosophy departments.
4. Social Sciences: from the Economics, Sociology, Psychology, or Political Science departments.
5. Numerical and Symbolic Reasoning: from the Mathematics, Psychology or Philosophy departments.

The so-called "centerpiece" of the new curriculum is the interdisciplinary minor. In order to complete the minor, students will be required to take about six courses from at least three disciplines. "Studies in Progressive American Social Movements" is an example of one of the 19 interdisciplinary minors that are currently being developed. This minor would link courses from the Religion, Philosophy, Economics, History, and Educational Studies departments in order to study the questions of Social reform and social justice. The minor possibly include an internship with a group working for social progress in Hartford.

The new curriculum makes the assumption that students, as responsible and intelligent adults, will use the freedom that such a curriculum allows in order to take a vast array of courses to achieve both the breadth and depth of a liberal arts education. In principle, then, it is an excellent idea. However, the open curriculum has failed if students abuse the freedom which it affords as a means to avoid certain subjects. This has been the case at Trinity, and as a result, many students have graduated from this liberal arts institution with an education that cannot accurately be labeled "liberal arts." According to Associate Dean of Academic Affairs Ronald Spencer, "45% of the class of 1985 did no work in the natural sciences, 30% graduated without having taken courses in the quantitative subjects, and 20% had no courses in the fine or performing arts."

Student objections to the general education curriculum are weak. For instance, some students complain that such a curriculum would restrict their freedom of choice which enables them to shape their own education. However, as Professor Frank Kirkpatrick said, the new curriculum only imposes "the bare minimum of restrictions." After all, one course in each of the five general categories should not place too much of a burden on the average Trinity student. Moreover, there is a wide enough selection of courses within each education category from which to choose.

Students also make the case that since they plan to become lawyers or investors or artists, they will not need to study math or science. Or, since they took a few high school math and science courses, they have learned all of the math and science they will need to know. Yet, a basic knowledge of both science and math is an absolute prerequisite to becoming a responsible citizen in a world in which science plays so large a role. And let's face it — typical high school level math or science courses are often woefully inadequate. Moreover, the interdisciplinary minor better prepares students for the world they are about to enter because it forces them to look at the interactions and relationships between the different disciplines, instead of "compartmentalizing" their education.

Perhaps the strongest argument that students make against the general education curriculum is that it will destroy the uniqueness of Trinity. After all, many people came to Trinity precisely because there were no requirements to bother with. Yet, the interdisciplinary minor is so innovative that, according to Dean Spencer, it will serve to "enliven the intellectual atmosphere at Trinity and attract students." While other universities may have minors, they are not interdisciplinary as Trinity's will be. Further, the professors' enthusiasm for the interdisciplinary minors is bound to carry over to the students and make this a more exciting place to be. And hopefully, the new curriculum will help to dispel Trinity's reputation as a camp or a country club.

As an institution of higher learning, Trinity has the obligation to produce the best educated students — and that means providing students with at least a basic knowledge of the arts, humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, and quantitative subjects. As students, we should not gripe and groan about the general requirements; we should only be happy that finally we will get our four year's and $60,000 worth of a liberal arts education.

Proposed Parking Solutions

I am concerned about the lack of consideration the administration has shown to the students regarding Trinity's new parking restrictions. Punishing the students for the lack of spaces — by increasing the registration fee and allotting spaces in obscure locations, is not the proper solution.

During the summer, students were only generally warned about the changes. Those who parked in familiar places along Summit Street on Monday and Tuesday were abruptly towed (47 cars in two days) and faced $70 charges.

We all know there are other direct, less financially burdensome ways to reach students. Let's use them in the future.

Presently, spaces along Summit Street are vacant during the day. Sure, the faculty deserve a place to park, but the current scenario is inefficiently weighted. I propose two solutions.

The first travels along the same one-sided vein as our current situation. If the faculty were assigned to the football field lot, and students to Summit Street and dormitory areas, the football lot would only need to be patrolled (with 8-5 shuttles to offices) for 9 hours a day instead of 24. Also, the students would be able to park in places convenient to their needs.

I am more in favor of a second idea which involves a compromise. Why not give the students a few spaces on Summit Street for use all day, and after 3 PM, when the last classes have begun, open up the remaining spaces to anyone who needs them? This way, everyone's needs are best accommodated.

Sincerely,
Art Muldoon President. SGA

TRINITY TRIPOD

NOTE: The Tripod accepts and prints all letters to the editor and opinion articles. All submissions should be typed and double spaced. Although there is no limit to length, the editor reserves the right to condense letters of more than 250 words. All letters submitted by Friday, 5 p.m. will be considered for publication. Letters can be brought to the Tripod office (Jackson basement) or placed in campus mail. Box 1310. If there are any further questions, the editorial board can be reached at 246-1829.

Give Hood

American Red Cross

Letters

Re-Institute-Off-Campus Escorts

It is a new school year and we return to find changes in the way the school deals with us. Some of the changes are good, others are not. One of the changes, though, is not simply good or bad — it is in fact dangerous: there are no longer any security escorts for students living off-campus.

This is an appalling blunder — Trinity is not exactly situated in the best and safest of all environments, and it is for that reason that the escort system was created. There is a very tangible need for safe transportation after dark around campus and off-campus. In a response to an overload on the time and energies devoted to off-campus "details," all escorts, except those deemed as emergencies (e.g. to the hospital) have been halted. Yet, security escorts at night could not have been that great of a burden on Security since students were employed to drive the escorts. Thus, no actual security officers were involved in the system until after 2 A.M. Now Security is instituting a bus program that would circumnavigate the campus on a regular basis after dark in lieu of the regular escorts.

No "Safe Sex Day"

To the Editor:

The Trinity Tripod of April 21, 1987 had an extensive article on the AIDS Task Force at the College. If the article was accurate, it appears that Trinity, in its wisdom and pursuit of intellectual endeavors, has not included family values as one of the ideologies to be fostered.

To be accepted at Trinity one has to be academically talented. Superior or above average reading and thinking skills are certainly a prerequisite for acceptance. Why does the Trinity community assume that its students are not at least reasonably informed about sexual problems?

While I do understand the need to educate the public about the problem of AIDS, I am appalled at the suggestion of a "Safe Sex Day" for students. I am even more appalled, however, at the suggestion which would place condom machines in the library because the infirmity is either too far away or too inconvenient to dispense this item. If this is what we must do to aid the best and the brightest, may God help us.

Sincerely,
Miriam A. Reid Parent of Joseph M. Reid, '86

The new system would obviously be easier to run, as message relays from Mather to Security would not be needed since the bus would run on a regular schedule. Clearly, the old system was inefficient and slow. The bus system is not necessarily a bad idea, except for the neglect of those who do not live on the perimeter of the campus. Also, there is often a need for late night travel, but sending a bus around in the middle of the night would be a wasted effort, as the escort volume is much smaller.

A combination of the old and the new system would probably work well though. The bus could provide transportation for on-campus escorts, and the remaining off-campus escorts could be done by a student security driver. Both the bus and the student driver would run until 2 A.M., at which time Security officers could take over.

Approximately 10% of the student body lives off campus for various reasons. One reason is that there is not adequate on-campus housing. If students are going to pay full tuition and have the extra burden of taking care of an off-campus residence, at least the school should provide safe transportation after dark.

How many muggings have to occur? How many rapes? Halting off-campus escorts is a dangerous policy.

If you live off campus and have to travel at night, let the Security Office know. As soon as they realize how many people this represents, maybe something might change.

Sincerely,
The Coalition for Off-Campus Security

Waldheim's Visit With Pope

To the Editor:

At the outset, it should be made clear that no Jew at the time of the Holocaust, nor today, is looking for pity or sympathy, but simply for an understanding of their reaction to current events, in the light of the many centuries of wanton persecution.

The audience granted by Pope John Paul II to Kurt Waldheim, and the general feeling of consternation caused by it in the Jewish community should be understood in the proper, personal and historical context.

Pope John Paul II embodies the very best in men of all creeds and persuasions. The Pope commands no military might but he, as the symbol of the highest moral values, in addition to representing the spiritual aspirations of millions, commands something far mightier than armies. As the head of an institution far more enduring than military victories and conquests, he - has a stature unsurpassed in world affairs.

This great man, admired and deeply respected throughout the world, has, by granting a private audience to Kurt Waldheim, given him the kind of international status which up to now has eluded him. The Jewish community, as well as many other groups of all denominations, are pained, anguished and puzzled by this act which will give aid and comfort to a person whose human relations record is, almost universally, questioned. This episode is particularly incomprehensible in view of the Pontiff's deep and most constructive involvement in all questions of human rights.

Experience would indicate that a previous audience granted to Yasser Arafat, irresponsible terrorist and sworn enemy of Israel, all Jews and probably even all of mankind, has given him a new lease on his political life, enhanced his diminished stature and prolonged and encouraged his nefarious activities.

Because of the various steps this great Pontiff has taken to achieve a more tolerant understanding between Christians and Jews, the audiences granted to people like Yasser Arafat and Kurt Waldheim are especially devastating. The defensive Jewish reaction is based on many centuries of painful disappointments and hurtful experiences.

It is also a very distressing paradox that a heroic figure like Pope John Paul II should find himself in the same ideological camp with the Soviet Union and an assortment of Third World Central African dictators on questions such as the recognition of, and the exchange of ambassadors to, the State of Israel.

A case can probably be made for the old adage, "Love the sinner but hate the sin"; however an even more important and valid case can also be made that the sin should not be encouraged or perpetuated.

Sincerely,
Edgar Hartley

collegiate crossword

©Edward Julius Collegiate CW8731

- |                             |                             |                            |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------|----------------------------|
| ACROSS               | 51 Not suitable             | 23 Coach Hank              |
| 1 _____ of the law          | 56 Church attendees         | 24 Examines before robbing |
| 8 Easily bent               | 57 One of the conquistadors | 25 Jiratis-word            |
| 15-etty near" Los Angeles   | 59 Joint sound              | 26 Car or horse            |
| 16 Capital-of-Burma         | 60 Subject of Newton's      | 27 More to Nader's liking  |
| 17 _____ bread              | 61 Attractive               | 29 Gap: Sp.                |
| 18 Burning fragrance        | 62 Sink                     | 30 Literary twist          |
| 19 Film comedian            |                             | 31 Ora pro                 |
| 20 Relative of jeans        | DOWN                 | 32 Rub lightly in passing  |
| 22 Financial grace period   | 1 Secular                   | 33 Spokesperson            |
| 24 Large letters, for short | 2 Prefix: at right angles   | 35 "Star --"               |
| 28 Subject of Kilmer poem   | 3 Sports organization       | 36 Kind of flu             |
| 29 Crosby and cherry        | 4 Liquid measures (abbr.)   | 38 Fearless                |
| 34 Earhart, for one         | 5 Parting word              | 42 "____ of Honey"         |
| 36 City near Chicago        | 6 Narrow inlet              | 44 "Go away!"              |
| 37 Pacific inlet (3 wds.)   | 7 Type of orange            | 45 Aspects of clothing     |
| 39 Regard highly            | 8 Mark Twain character      | 46 Give a darn             |
| 40 Create a closed shop     | 9 Actress Hope              | 47 "An apple ----"         |
| 41 Mythical carrier         | 10 Victim of 57-Across      | 48 Word in campaign poster |
| 42 Thin Han's pooch         | 11 Ripening agent           | 49 Parseghian, et al.      |
| 43 Belgian river            | 12 Study, with "up"         | 50 Mother of Apollo        |
| 44 Ship parts               | 13 Emulate Charlie Brown    | 52 Certain fed             |
| 46 Procession               | 14 Chemical endings         | 53 Comedian Johnson        |
|                             | 21 Kind of absence          | 54 School chief (abbr.)    |
|                             |                             | 55 Frog                    |
|                             |                             | 58 Suffix for hero         |

Marxist Professors

To the Editor:

I have just been informed by the Executive Vice President of Trinity that Trinity is paying salary to at least 4 or 5 Marxist faculty. You only know how many socialists are on your payroll. About 80% in my estimate.

The shocking part of this stupidity is that the management of Trinity sees nothing wrong with Marxists teaching Marxism to young and naive students whose tuition is paid by parents most of whom would bring their sons and daughters home immediately if they were aware of this typical academic horror story.

So be honest and print this letter after retreating to your bomb shelter.

Sincerely,
Jack Smith White, '40

Senate Should Confirm Bork

To the Editor:

Former chief justice of the Supreme Court, Warren Burger, has come out in favor of him. At least one current justice, moderate John Paul Stevens, has said he would vote for him. Numerous organizations, as diverse as the National Jewish Coalition, Southern Baptist Convention, Knights of Columbus, Hispanic Economic Council, and National Women's Law Center, have all formally endorsed him. He was unanimously approved as a federal appellate judge two years ago by the U.S. Senate. Who is he? Federal Judge Robert Bork, nominee for the U.S. Supreme Court.

Then why has such a hate campaign been levelled at him? Senator Kennedy (D-MA) has warned of "back-alley abortions... segregated lunch counters," and censorship "at the whim of government" if Bork is confirmed. Contrary to the claims of his critics, Bork is a proponent of judicial restraint, which sees the role of the judge as determining the intent of the framers or legislators, and not imposing his own values in their stead.,

He would most likely turn the issue of abortion back to the states. He has clearly stated the unconstitutionality of segregation as long ago as 1971, writing: "The [Supreme] Court must...choose a general principle of equality that applies to all cases. The Court cannot decide that physical equality is important but psychological equality is not. Thus the ru'u v/Brown [v. Board of Education] must overturn and replace the separate-but-equal doctrine of Plessy v. Ferguson." (Indiana Law Journal)

This is a battle between the principles of Constitutional law upon which our nation was founded, which protects the rights of the minority without eliminating the values of the larger society, and the activists of the left who have tried to impose their agenda on the rest of society: promoting pornography, homosexuality, abortion, and value-free education behind the smoke-screen of "egalite," while ridiculing religion, patriotism, and the moral values necessary to maintain and work for a free and just society.

Sincerely,
Allan Ballinger

Angry?
Write the Tripod,
Box 1310

News

Minority Freshmen Participate in Preliminary Orientation

by David Copland
News Editor

Of 80 minority freshmen, thirty-five black, Hispanic and Asian freshmen took part in a special minority orientation program held August 25th and 26th. The program was designed to give the freshmen an opportunity to meet each other, and to attack the problem of assimilation at a predominantly white institution.

The minority orientation illustrates the firm commitment made by the administration to diversify the College. As a major issue on campus, the problems surrounding the increase of minority enrollment at Trinity are being dealt with more openly.

"People are anxious about it, being a special case — that the participants get an advantage over other students. These people don't realize what the advantage of being white at Trinity is," said Assistant Dean of Students Paula Chu-Richardson.

Chu-Richardson and Kirk Peters, the other Assistant Dean of Students, planned and lead the program. The students lived in Jackson and Wheaton and participated in activities lead by 12 upperclass counselors, including a picnic, group sessions, films followed by discussion, and an alumni/ae panel.

The program is slightly controversial, as it has been suggested that it causes the students to segregate themselves from the other freshmen. But, says Richardson, "Anybody who is readily identifiable as different from the norm will be noticed when together. Our push is to get the students involved in all sorts of organizations and to be high profile. Making them feel more comfortable is more likely to lead to integration than if they are uncomfortable."

Jim Hong, '90, did not participate as a freshman. "If, some Korean kid comes, he'll get to meet others just like him. All he'll do for the first two months of school is hang out with other Koreans. By the time he starts meeting other people he'll be way behind socially."

Todd Gillespie, '90, one of the two white counselors on the staff of 12, said he participated to meet the new students. "There is lots of criticism in that it causes students to group together. But it's good to get them together at the beginning to let them know that they are not the only one on campus. All the participants seemed really pleased."

According to Chu-Richardson and the counselors, the program was highly successful and had the highest numbers involved in five years. Evaluations filled out by participating students recommended that the same program be offered to future classes.

Counselor Yani Kwee, '89, commented: "Minority students sometimes get turned off by these kinds of programs. They think they are being singled out for special treatment. But this is more than just something fun to do."

Freshman David Cesal was satisfied with the program. He said, "I got to make a lot of friends and although I went into it hesitantly, I came out of it with a good feeling. It was definitely worth coming a day or two in advance."

school is renovating the Umoja House, and more money was spent on recruitment." Dietrich added, that a "more supportive climate" at Trinity helped to attract minority students. For example, Gail Woldu, the new Assistant Dean of Faculty, will be primarily involved with minority affairs and will serve as a liaison between the student body and the administration.

There are also more international students in this year's freshman class, as well as more dancers, artists and musicians. "We have some very talented freshmen this year," said Dietrich, "overall, this is an exciting and interesting class."

Dietrich was pleased that Trinity was being thought of more seriously by more serious students. "Trinity is becoming more popular and competitive. We turned down students who might have been accepted years before," he commented.

Peters, New Asst. Dean of Students Arrives

by Jinny Swope

New Assistant Dean of Students, Kirk Peters, is enthusiastic and excited about working with the student population.

Peters expressed his wish to be a "change agent" on campus. He wants to help students through "sharing or any other discourse," to keep their minds open and receptive.

Although he will be working in all aspects of student life, one of Peters' main duties will include serving as a liaison between the fraternities and the Administration.

Concerning the new alcohol policy, he speaks highly of the Inter-Fraternity Council which is trying to abide by the policy rather than work around it. "It's easy to see that you're taking students' rights," said Peters, "but the more responsible student would see the positive results of the action."

Peters will also be advising those students who are on academic probation. He feels the "warning system" of academic probation is extremely effective because it shows that someone is there who is concerned enough to offer the student help.

Since 1984 Peters has been working at Ramapo College in New Jersey as the Asst. Director of Residential Life. While there, he coached both the Women's Volleyball and Men's Tennis teams.

Originally from Springfield, Massachusetts, Peters attended the University of Massachusetts and graduated with a degree in Latin American studies. He worked at the University as a hall director, then as an area director.

Kirk Peters

During that time, he completed his Master's Degree in Education.

Peters is looking forward to working at Trinity as a change from the state schools he has been working for during the past nine years. He hopes to work with Third World students and with the resident assistants. Outside of the office, he will be helping to coach the Women's Volleyball team.

This Year's Freshman Class Most Diverse Yet

by Hillary Davidson
Editor-in-chief

"The class of 1991 is one of the most accomplished, talented and diverse group of freshmen that Trinity has admitted in recent years," said Donald Dietrich, Director of Admissions.

Minority enrollment has increased significantly; while there are only 14 black students in the Class of 1990, there are 34 in the Class of '91. The number of Asian students in this year's freshman class is almost double the total of last year's, and the number of Hispanic students has increased slightly as well.

Asked why Trinity drew more minority applicants last fall, Dietrich replied: "Trinity has committed its resources to diversifying the student body. There is more money available for financial aid, the

Woldu Assists Minorities

by Toh Tsun Lim

New Assistant Dean of Faculty, Gail Woldu, will serve primarily as a liaison between the faculty and the increasingly diverse student body. She plans to open up more channels of communication between advisors and minority students.

"The Office of the Dean of Faculty is just trying to support the Admission Department's move to diversify the student body," says Woldu of the increase in minority enrollment. "You can't just recruit more students of color and then leave it at that."

Though Woldu is pleased with the diversification of the Class of 1991, she believes that this increase must be followed up with the proper support of those with different cultural backgrounds. Woldu hopes that the advisors will help to fortify the ties between faculty and students.

In addition to her administrative duties, Woldu is teaching courses in Black American Music and in the History of Western Musical Themes. She received a Ph.D. in 19th century French Musical Style from Yale. She has also taught at Bates College as a music instructor.

Woldu has already started to work with members of the English department, Area Studies, and the Trinity Coalition of Blacks to organize "Black History Month" in February. The event, scheduled to begin Feb. 2, will feature noted black poet Sonia Sanchez as keynote speaker. The program will continue through the rest of the month with a series of films and seminars on black culture and images from 1920 to the present.

Though Woldu is primarily involved with minority affairs, she does not consider herself strictly a minority advisor. As the Assistant Dean of Faculty, her duties bring her into contact with the entire student body.

Gail Woldu

Where they come from . . .

Geographical Information on the Class of 1991:

Alabama	1	Minnesota	2
Alaska	1	Missouri	5
Arizona	3	Nebraska	1
California	11	New Hampshire	5
Colorado	1	New Jersey	34
Connecticut	103	New Mexico	1
Delaware	2	New York	62
District of Columbia	6	North Carolina	2
Florida	8	Ohio	5
Georgia	1	Pennsylvania	26
Hawaii	1	Puerto Rico	2
Illinois	10	Rhode Island	4
Indiana	2	Tennessee	3
Kansas	1	Texas	5
Kentucky	1	Utah	1
Maine	8	Vermont	1
Maryland	14	Virginia	5
Massachusetts	101	Washington	1
Michigan	3	Wisconsin	1
		Foreign Students	17

Who's in this year's Freshman class? Here are some of the numbers from the Admissions Department:

Total Applications: 3466
Total Accepted: 1377
Total Enrolled: 447
SAT Information: Avg. verbal 580
Avg. math 610

Minority Students:•
34 Black (7.6% of the class)
• 28 Asian (6.3% of the class)
17 Hispanic (3.9% of the class)
79 total (17% of the class)

News

Frobb Renovated, Vernon St. Dorm Goes Up

by Christine Herzig
Assistant News Editor

Two new construction projects greeted Trinity students as they arrived back on campus. Progress has been made on the new structure on Vernon Street, and the combination of Frohman and Robb dormitories into one building has been completed.

Completed in early August, the Frohman/Robb dormitory, housing 68 students, has received "quite a bit of praise," according to Siu-Chim Chan, Director of Buildings and Grounds. "In fact," Chan continued, "not only has the feedback been good, as to the tremendous improvement to the building, but also better than that for Little."

"We had a close hand in choosing the architect and contractor," said Chan, "and are very pleased with the results." Christina Dow, Director of Residential Services, has said her reaction, too, has been "generally positive," and adds, "the year is still young and we have basically only heard good things."

"I wish," said Dow, "that all of those one room doubles could be singles, but I think that we have corrected some flaws that we discovered in Little." Presently, one more complication is that students from the waiting list were placed in the lounges in Frohman/Robb but Dow has said she "hopes to move those students at the end of the Fall term. Those would be lovely lounges, and I'd like to get them reinstated at the end of the Fall term. The students in those lounge rooms have Fall Term Only contracts."

Also to be finished soon is the Vernon Street dormitory and the new student center. The new dorm, troubled early on by labor strikes, has gotten back on schedule and is now supposed to be finished in January of 1988.

When asked who would be placed in the Vernon Street dorm, Dow replied, "the new dorm is seen as a relief for some crowding, not as housing for additional students. However let us keep in mind that, if the College continues with it's plan to close and renovate residential spaces, then that new dorm may not immediately ease crowding. It may find a use in picking up the spaces lost during renovation of other areas."

"While the new student center," says Dow, "should basically contain social and snack bar space."

New Science Program Implemented

by Peter Swanson
Assistant News Editor

Under the direction of Chemistry Professor David Henderson, a new Guided Studies Program in Engineering, Mathematics and Natural Sciences has been implemented for the class of 1991 and for future classes.

Henderson first conceived of the idea for the program six years ago. It was not until the summer of '86, however, that Henderson, along with Mathematics Professor Ralph Walde and Physics Professor Harvey Picker, began to put plans into action.

Currently, there are 24 members of the class of '91 enrolled in the program. Henderson says that his project is still in the early stages.

"This is the pilot year," Henderson said, "we are inventing it as we go along. We are trying to create a demand."

Unlike the existing Guided Studies Program, which focuses on the humanities and can be completed in two years, the new Guided Studies Program spans three years.

In that time, students are required to take seven courses, including a freshman seminar and two labs. In addition, students are encouraged to take certain electives.

One of the classes that Henderson is particularly excited about is a planned seminar "explicitly addressing the problems that happen when scientists differ on certain issues." Henderson feels that this is the type of class that should be a regular part of a scientific curriculum.

Along with seminars, Henderson has further plans to change the curriculum in his department.

"We can try new experiments that will eventually work their way into the curriculum," he said.

Invitations to join the program were sent out to over 200 prospective students, of which 27 were accepted;.....

"We had anticipated ten (acceptance) [7]"" said Henderson. "We were overwhelmed."

While Henderson is satisfied with the program as it stands now, he has many goals for its future. "One goal is primarily to address the decline in enrollment in the sciences," Henderson said.

"Once the word gets out, it will increase the awareness that Trinity is a good place to get a science education."

Henderson looks to a future when Trinity's scientific departments get the recognition he feels they deserve. "I can't name an institution where you can get a better undergraduate education in chemistry."

Lipshez New Head of Women's Center

by Peter Swanson
Assistant News Editor

Marji Lipshez, acting Coordinator of Trinity's Women Center, has many plans for the upcoming year and, most importantly, hopes to change prevailing attitudes toward the Women's Center.

Lipshez, a former Dean of Residential Life at Connecticut College, is replacing Dr. Judith Branzburg as Coordinator of the Women's Center for a year while Branzburg is on sabbatical. "I was looking to stay in a college educational position," she said.

Since Lipshez had been involved with minority issues at Connecticut College, she wanted to use her "minority skills to work with women's issues at Trinity."

Lipshez is planning many upcoming events that will involve both men and women. She plans a Speaker Series in which "men and women will talk about what success is."

Other issues that Lipshez is particularly interested in are relationships between men and women, self-esteem, and life-planning for students. Lipshez is also concerned with the problem of "defining feminism."

One of Lipshez's first priorities, however, is to deal with misconceptions concerning the Women's Center. She feels that women's organizations are commonly believed to be composed of radical feminists and men haters. "A common goal will be to get rid of myths about women's organizations."

Ideally, Lipshez and her co-workers hope the Women's Center will become a place where male and female students can come and openly discuss issues. "It's not just a reactive place to come after a problem," said Lipshez.

Student Assistant Julie Beman, '89, added that "we want to make this a place where people can come and just discuss things."

Alcohol Policy

continued from page 1.

The monitor may not have any alcohol that evening.

In the past, there were disputes over the high cost of the guards and the effectiveness of their presence. The waiving of the guards, however, will be at the discretion of the Asst. Dean for Student Activities, Jo Ann Pulver.

The campus guards on duty in the vicinity of the party will drop by and observe occasionally just as they would any other area on their beat. If a problem arises while they are present, they will still have full authority to take action.

Organizations that wish to serve hard liquor at their events must obtain a one-day liquor license and will only be allowed to serve on a cash bar basis. This will end the practice of paying a donation and having access to an open hard bar as happy hours and formals often had in the past.

Winer points out that organizations are welcome to get the permit and serve liquor. According to Winer most organizations have obtained the permit in the past anyway.

However, AD has not applied for the permit in the past and Johnson sees possible legal problems. "When you get that permit you become a real bar for the night, then you're dealing with the state and not just with the College administration."

iplinary records will be auoweu iu serve as monitors for parties rather than requiring the use of campus guards. At least 2 student monitors must be present at parties with 100 or fewer people. An additional monitor for each 50' guests over 100 is also required.

WRTC Vandals

again at 7:00 P.M. from jury rigged equipment.

Operations were moved back into the control room at 9:30 P.M. on Friday, but WRTC was transmitting only at half power. By Saturday afternoon the station had been restored to normal operation. Although he had to wait for the powdered dust to settle the station's Chief Engineer was able to repair the damage himself. Security and the WRTC executive board both realize that action must be taken to control the station more effectively during the hours of 10:00 P.M. to 6:00 A.M.

The youths fled the area after the attack and no equipment was reported stolen from the station.

Also that evening, two suspicious males entered a room on the second floor of High Rise supposedly looking for a friend named "Ted." Security searched the AD area where a small party was being held, as well as the Vernon St. grounds from Broad St. to Summit St.

Rucci cautioned students about leaving their doors unlocked or open even when the students are in their rooms. He also urged that Security be contacted concerning any incident or suspicious individuals, no matter how minor.

"Last year we got a call over by Little," said Rucci. "It was a few guys selling power tools out of a station wagon. We called the police with the registration and eventually a counterfeiting ring was uncovered."

Artist's rendition of the Vernon St. dorm.

News

Changes in Greek Housing

by David Copland
News Editor

and Ivan Heller

Both Kappa Kappa Gamma and Sigma Nu moved into new houses over the summer while Delta Delta moved out. For Kappa, the move is a big step in establishing itself nationally and on campus.

Liz Calm, '88, House chairwoman for Kappa, says that "in terms of image we are looking stronger both nationally and at Trinity. We've only been around for 5 years and have only been eligible for a house for one, and we've already got it."

Kappa, which has about 50 active members on campus, moved into the house in August and began renovations. They have a one year rental lease, with an option to buy, on the top two floors of a multiple family building located on Allen Place behind North Campus. Six sisters are living in the house this semester. *

Trinity's Kappa chapter will be featured in an upcoming edition of "The Key," Kappa's national magazine. Cahn said the chapter is of interest because of its rapid growth and acquisition of a house.

Sigma Nu, which had a house last year, has moved next door into a larger building at 2628 Brownell. The house is an old rooming house with three floors and 10 single bedrooms. Nine brothers live in the house which is owned jointly by Sigma Nu alumni and the Sigma Psi corporation.

Tri-Delta left their house at 66 Vernon St. on Friday, September 4th. Having rented the house for several years they opted to do without a house until they are able to purchase one. "We are moving on to bigger and better things," said President DeDe DePatie, '88.

Although the Rush period is coming up next week the sisters are not concerned about the lack of a house. Secretary-Emergency Doug's feels that giving up the house has brought the sorority closer together. • • • • •

Law Schools to Visit Trinity

by Tara Allen

On Thursday, September 17 and October 1, 1987, Trinity students and alumni are invited to attend the third annual Law Day Program and the second annual Program of Professional Studies. "The programs give students the unique opportunity to discuss their own personal interests and qualifications with the professionals," says Rozanne Burt, Director of Career Counseling.

The Law Day Program and the Program of Professional Studies are held in collaboration with Wesleyan University and Connecticut

College. The programs are designed to cater to the interests of students who plan to pursue further studies in law, international affairs, public policy and business. The fairs also inform those alumni who may have delayed their education and are about to apply to graduate schools.

Fashioned after the high school fairs, the two programs are held in an informal setting and give students and alumni the opportunity to move about freely, collect literature and ask questions of the many representatives. According to Burt, "The programs offer a risk-free environment to ask questions of the many professionals and the chance to have 35 law schools in one room."

Representatives from graduate schools including Cornell, Georgetown, Northeastern and Yale will be on hand to answer questions concerning admission requirements and procedures, financial aid, the school application process, and any other concerns.

Both programs are open to all Trinity students and are scheduled from 7 to 9 P.M. in the Rittenberg Lounge in Mather. The programs are free and require no pre-registration.

The 1987-88 Inter Fraternity Council met at St. Anthony's Hall last week. Pictured above are; top from right, Shannon O'Connor, Mike Reilly, Etrown; second row, John Simkiss, Wayne Fitzpatrick, Matt Bergeron, Joe Yamin; third row, Beck Jelsma, Beth Edelman, T.J. Turner, John Levin; bottom, Dave McNaughton. Not pictured are Scott VanderMarck, Sally Young, Andrew Zimmerman.

Mayoral Candidate Speaks on Campus

by John Claud

Richard Lawlor, a Democrat running for his party's nomination for mayor of Hartford, spoke to Professor Clyde McKee's students on campus Friday, September 4. Lawlor, 40, has served on the Hartford Board of Education and as a state legislator.

Three items on Lawlor's platform are higher property taxes, increased housing support, and the abolition of tax-free status for institutions such as Trinity College,

Although Hartford has the highest property taxes of any city in the United States, Lawlor said that as mayor he would push for a hike in property taxes. According to Lawlor, the revenue generated from the increase in property taxes would go to help social programs in Hartford. When asked if the higher property taxes would drive away the large corporations, the candidate replied that the better quality of life and the increase in available skilled labor would instead attract the larger companies.

Lawlor said that if elected, he would construct single-occupancy homes and build mainly in areas that are depressed. He firmly believes that the reduction of poverty in the city will lead to the employment of the lower economic class in Hartford.

He also wishes to further pursue the goal of desegregation in Hartford public schools. Lawlor calls the present situation "a joke."

One of the major issues of the campaign is Lawlor's "controversial support for the Irish Republican Army. Lawlor's "home turf" in the city is the South End, which is predominantly Irish and Italian. A former president of the Irish-American Unity Conference, Lawlor was wearing the symbol of Irish unity, an Irish Easter lily, on his jacket lapel.

Lawlor is battling Carry Perry for the nomination to succeed Mayor Therman L. Milner. Since Perry is the endorsed Democratic candidate in the race, Lawlor will be fighting an uphill battle for the nomination. But, Lawlor said, "there is no substitute for shoe leather" and he intends to do some heavy politicking in the next week. The Democratic primary is September 15.

Mather Displays Art

by Joe Ragaglia

After a successful first year, Mather Hall Art Space has become a place for Studio Arts majors to exhibit their works. The Art Space, located on the second floor of Mather, now has a full gallery staff to schedule and maintain the exhibitions throughout the Fall and Spring terms.

This year's curator, Mimi Burns, fills the position vacated by the Art Space founder, Professor Elizabeth Tracy. "Professor Tracy and her students scheduled most of the exhibits for this fall before she left," said Burns.

While the fall shows will exhibit student artwork, Mimi hopes to involve the larger Trinity Community artists in the future. Plans for an Alumni exhibit are being discussed possibly for either Homecoming weekend or the Reunion weekend in June. Also scheduled in December is an art sale where students can purchase the work of their peers.

Not only the artwork, but also much of the work for the exhibits is done by the students. "I take care of the administrative work," explained Burns. "Then Susan Brady, '88, hangs the pieces and labels and prepares the works for exhibition."

On the first or second day of the display, the gallery staff holds an opening reception and encourages students to come. All events are free and the exhibits can be seen at any time.

Mather Art Space joins the Widener Gallery and Garmany Hall, as well as the library, in exhibiting the works of artistic students.

Woodsy Owl says
for Clean Air Ride a Bike

Give a hoot
Don't pollute.

Bob's D & D Package Store

AMEX
MASTER CARD
D.C.

417 New Britain Av@
Hartford, CT 06106
(103) 249-6B33

FREE DELIVERY
10% Discount on all liquor and wine with Trinity I.D.
Student Checks Cashed anytime
no purchase necessary

Siroh's
30-pack
sale price $9.99

BUSCH
suitcase
sale price $8.99

Absolut Vodka
1.75 ltr
sale price $19.99

Vodka
1.75 ltr
sale price $8.99

Clyde's Gin
1.75 ltr
sale price $9.99

Caribaya Rum
1.75 ltr
sale price $9.99

Beck's
24-12 oz bottles
dark or light
$15.99 + tax and deposit

JOLT Cola
"all the sugar twice the caffeine"

Free Win@Tasting
every Thursday 4-8 pm
Saturday 12-5 pm

TO MAKE IT TODAY YOU NEED A COLLEGE DIPLOMA, A GOOD SUIT AND PLENTY OF DRIVE.

If you've received your bachelor's degree from a 4-year college, or an RN or graduate degree from an accredited institution between October 1, 1986 and September 30, 1987, you can qualify for Ford's Graduate Assistance Program.

We can give you pre-approved credit and $400 cash back on your new Ford.

Only if you buy one of the new Ford cars or trucks listed below and only if you take delivery by August 31, 1987. For more information, call this toll-free number: 1-800-321-1536. Or see your local New England Ford Dealer today.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Escort.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Escort EXP.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Tempo.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Mustang.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Taurus.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Thunderbird.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Aerostar.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Ranger.

$400 CASH BACK on a new Bronco II.

NEW ENGLAND® WHS* DEALERS
SEE YOUR LOCAL NEW ENGLAND FORD DEALER TODAY

Features

That Annoying Question

by Wendy Rawlings
Features Editor

As the second week of classes comes to a close, I am sure that most people are breathing a sigh of relief when they greet acquaintances on the Long Walk just a "hello" or a smile. Finally, it seems, we are all released from asking the obligatory question: "HOW WAS YOUR SUMMER?" Freshmen will discover that this question flows as excessively from our mouths at the beginning of each year as beer flows into them. It also tends to pop up in one form or another after every school holiday (and Trinity has plenty). For example, "How was your Christmas?", "How was your Easter?", and "How was your Open Period?" This must be endured not once but twice a year.

Don't misunderstand me. Such a question is a natural one, especially after a three month span of time in which anything could have happened to anyone. The difficulty is that the question begins to sound trite after we hear it sixty - seven times in a twelve hour period. Furthermore, when we run into people about whose holidays we are actually interested in, all we can do is grin sheepishly as we hear ourselves saying, "No, I really want to know. How WAS your summer?"

if you think that you might scream if you hear one more story about jet - setting around Europe, painting houses, or lifeguarding on the Cape, all hope is not lost. A remedy can be found in the form of a small paperback book by Gregory Stock, Ph.D entitled The Book of Questions.

Composed entirely of questions that inspire a great deal of soul - searching, this book may reveal some startling things about even your closest friends. Try springing this one on a friend: "If you were able to live to the age of 90 and retain either the body or the mind of a 30 year - old for the last sixty years of your life, which would you want?" You may discover a streak of vanity beneath that intellectual veneer. Or how about, "Would you rather be extremely successful professionally and have a tolerable yet unexciting private life or have an extremely happy private life and only a tolerable and uninspiring professional life?" Such a question, is particularly apt for college students, who can still make a choice not to have to make a choice between a satisfying career or private life;

I recently asked a friend one of the more clear - cut questions in the book, at least as far as I was concerned: "Would you be willing to eat a bowl of live crickets for $40,000?"(I wince just thinking about it). He paused for a moment, then nodded his head emphatically. "Hell no!" he said. I smiled, satisfied that I really did know him, but then he continued. "I wouldn't do it," he said. "For a penny under fifty grand."

So you never finished telling me, how was your summer?

Understanding Deafness

by Wendy Rawlings
Features Editor

Imagine designing a course that you will be teaching here at Trinity; compiling a reading list, preparing lectures and exams, and carefully structuring the course into a coherent whole. Now imagine that you won't be able to hear a word that any of your ents says.

Such was the dilemma for Dick Mahaffy '89 when he decided to act on a wish to teach a course that would educate the hearing world about deafness; As the only, profoundly deaf student at Trinity, Dick is uniquely qualified to explain the problems that a deaf person encounters. Although a deaf person might have difficulty communicating anywhere, the very nature of a college environment is based upon verbal communication. However, as Dick pointed out, a liberal arts school is an appropriate place to try to bridge the gap between the deaf and hearing worlds.

To this end, Dick asked Greg Druckman '88 to teach the course with him. Together they met with graduate mentor Bill Silva, and the result of their collaboration is a course called Understanding Deafness, offered this semester. Dick and Greg have arranged to split the lectures so that the students have the experience of communicating with a deaf person. While some deaf people use sign language to communicate, Dick was taught to speak and lip read. However, his speech impediment and most people's tendency to mumble present complications. As a hearing person, Greg can clarify communication problems in class, but it is both Dick's and Greg's hope that the material offered in the course, not simply Intervention by a hearing person, can help to eliminate these problems.

In addition to lectures and readings, Dick and Greg have plans to bring the class to the Clark School for the Deaf in Northampton, Massachusetts, where Dick attended school since the age of four-and-a-half. The Clark School subscribes to a philosophy of oral communication, whose proponents believe that all deaf people can be taught to speak. A debate has long stood in the deaf community between supporters of oral communication and those of sign language. According to Dick, both methods have value, but he prefers oral commu-

McBride Brings Canada to Trinity

by Jennifer Osborne

Bryant McBride, a senior Political Science major, has created a course geared toward conveying the experience of being a Canadian citizen to otherwise uninformed students. Fifteen students are taking the course here this semester, "The Canadian Experience." McBride's primary goal is to provide students with the opportunity to see from the viewpoint of a different culture and political system. "American students often go through the educational system with blinders on," he says, "and they don't perceive foreign viewpoints until it is too late." He holds a firm belief that every history course must be taught from the perspective of foreign countries as well as that of the United States. This unique teaching opportunity will give him the chance to show students Canada's own particular system. He intends to explore the specific differences and similarities between the U.S. and Canada as only someone who has lived in both countries can. "This is not an opportunity that students could get at most schools," says McBride.

Although he has no future interest in becoming a teacher, McBride has developed his own system for teaching his class. He places emphasis on two things: learning and fun. To keep the atmosphere of the class light, he prefers discussions to straight lectures. He also believes in discussion because it forces students to participate and remain alert. McBride intends for his students to improve their public speaking ability and learn to react well under pressure through taking his course. At the end of the semester, each student will be asked to take on a specific persona and speak about an issue that he has studied for in advance. The student will have ten minutes to prepare, then must assume the role and speak on his feet. Since McBride considers public speaking to be a valuable skill, teaching the class is giving him good experience in that area, too.

McBride was born in Chicago, but moved to Canada at the age of five. He now lives in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario and has a dual citizenship in Canada and the U.S. When he left Canada to go to school in the States, he felt that he should communicate his experiences to American students. He pursued his idea with preparation this summer, which included research and visits to the Canadian consulates in Boston and San Francisco. He did much of his research at Berkeley, where he read books on Canadian history and geography. After establishing this background, he submitted his proposal to the Curriculum Committee through Dean Spencer. "Professors Valocchi and Neaverson were also a great help to me," he says. He looks forward to the rest of the course, which he hopes will bring Canada to Connecticut.

New Hard Bar Policy

nication because, that is the language of the hearing world.

Learning to speak when one cannot hear is something incomprehensible to the hearing world, for speech and hearing faculties are intimately linked. Dick's choice to adapt by learning to speak and to educate the hearing world about deafness are two steps toward uniting deaf and hearing people. After this semester, perhaps some members of the hearing world can meet him halfway.

FEATURE WRITERS AND CARTOONISTS NEEDED

IF INTGRBSTBb> PLEASE DROP A NOTE IN CAMPUS BOX 1918!

SUBSCRIBE TO THE TRIPOD!

STUDENTS, PARENTS, ALUMNI - IF YOU WOULD LIKE THE TRIPOD DELIVERED TO YOUR DOORSTEP EVERY WEEK FOR THE 1987-88 ACADEMIC YEAR, SEND $15 AND THE FORM BELOW TO:

THE TRINITY TRIPOD
BOX 1310
TRINITY COLLEGE
HARTFORD, CT 06106

NAME: _____
ADDRESS: _____
CITY: _____ STATE: _____ ZIP: _____

Features

Going Back To Camp

by Kasia Daly
Tripod Staff Writer

And so I packed up my car to begin road - tripping back to Camp. Packed and repacked. I asked myself over and over again, "Should I bring this dress? But what if I go to a formal?" Finally I decided to bring the bare minimum necessary to be completely prepared for every senior year occasion: three duffel bags of clothes, a stereo, a bottle of fine liqueur, and six 32-ounce plastic cups. After all, I won't need the toboggan for a Hartford winter, I've gone three years without the mannequin, and the hula hoop just doesn't matter.

Two thousand miles and twelve days later I am tangled in sticky situations and traumas that thirteen pairs of shoes just won't get me out of. Welcome back to school. "Won't you come into my parlor," said the spider to the fly. Sucked dry by financial aid, I expect to be cast off by the college at the end of the year, an empty shell of a human being. Maybe I'll get to be one of the girls raped before security escorts are reinstated.

That's being a little too melodramatic. Actually, the law of averages is on my side because I've already been robbed since I got back. The only adverse effect of being at school so far for me is that I've worn out the orange shoes by calling on various deans, professors, and offices in the process of shuffling small bits of paper. If I am lucky enough to work for an insurance company after graduation, the paper shuffling and crime victimization constitute the most useful part of my college education.

To think that I came here for a four-year Camp vacation. "Take a few classes? Sure, why not?" I was actually foolish enough to believe that until two weeks ago. I guess I was working too hard at my four summer jobs to realize I was a masochist. I'm going to miss that spring Open Period. That's when I slept. It's a good thing we're getting rid of those vacations and introducing a core curriculum — double majors like me will be forced to go somewhere else. They'll miss their Little Ivy Vacation in Hell.

To end with an I'm-a-senior-and-remember-things-that-you-don't-memory, remember that very camp column writer with a shoe fetish? Yes, Ann Coleman, it is very difficult to write a column without mentioning purple high top sneakers.

Fresh Perspectives

by Sung-san Hong

With the Boston Globe tucked under my arm, I wielded my lunch tray toward an empty table. The dining hall was as busy as Fanuei! Hall. This is where I will eat every meal for the next four years, I thought to myself. And as I was contemplating the part yellow, part brown glop of mashed potatoes on my plate, a huge freshman whom I remembered from orientation sat down across from me. "Hello," I said. But he didn't hear me. He just began spooning mashed potatoes through his crooked teeth. He's just as afraid to meet me as I am to meet him, I said to myself. "So... what's your seminar?" I asked. He peered up at me for the first time and grunted, "Violence." His brows swelled to the size of my shoulders. "That sounds intriguing," I said.

Then a buxom blonde with salad on her plate carefully parked herself beside me. She looked lost and lonely. "So... what's your seminar?" I inquired. She looked at me in disbelief, then began poking at her tomatoes without answering me. "Do you come here often?" I said with a laugh. She got up and headed for another table. "Hey, I was only joking," I called after her. I even let out a nervous chuckle to convince her. But she was gone. As I watched her disappear into an amorphous crowd, I knew right then what I really needed, what I desperately had to have right then - a Standing Ovation.

"I gotta go right now," I said to Big Brow, "but we'll have to get together real soon." I cleared my tray and walked out into the rain. It's been raining for three days straight. I wanted to ask an upper-classman if it always rained like this in Hartford. But I knew the reply I would get only too well: "What're you, a freshman?!" I was wet and I had nowhere to go. I didn't want to go back to my room. My roommate was from Booneyville, U.S.A. and owned a pet chameleon which bore an uncanny resemblance to him. On top of all that, both of us seemed to be exhibiting the first signs of claustrophobia, a phenomenon which I am told is not uncommon for inhabitants of one

Colin First Female DealTof...Faculty

by Sheri Qualters

Twenty years ago, a woman couldn't even attend Trinity as an undergraduate. Perhaps the hiring of Jan Cohn as Dean of Faculty demonstrates how much opportunities for women have grown in twenty years. Every time we turn on "Donahue," we hear people discussing new career options for women, but it is easier to believe them when we see a living example. Cohn has an educational background similar to that of many Trinity students, for she received her B.A. from Wellesley and went on to earn a Ph.D., which might be an inspiration for those of us who are still unsure about our post - Trinity plans.

Dean Cohn has held impressive teaching and administrative positions, including Assistant Professor at the University of Toledo, Director of Graduate Studies in English at Carnegie Mellon University, and the Chairwoman of the English Department at George Mason University. At Trinity, Dean Cohn will be teaching English courses next semester. Her areas of expertise are American Literature, American Studies, and Popular Culture.

In addition to her teaching experience, Cohn has published numerous articles and four books, one of which is due out this January and will be entitled Romance and the Erotics of Property: Mass Market Fiction for Women.

Cohn came to Trinity because she believes that liberal arts are the core of an undergraduate education. She expressed her concern that too much importance is placed upon business and engineering schools at the expense of smaHliberal arts schools like Trinity. Though she has only been here a short time, she said that Trinity "feels like a community," and she approves of the changes in the curriculum such as the core requirements and interdisciplinary minors.

So what exactly are Cohn's plans for Trinity? One is "to oversee implementation of the curricular innovations." She also wants to attract more students interested in science and math to balance the student body, which now contains a high percentage of humanities majors. As Dean of the Faculty, Cohn is also responsible for the academic budget and for overseeing each of the faculty departments,

Dean Cohn is accomplished and articulate, intelligent and personable. Her credentials and approachability indicate that she is not only the right person to serve as Dean; she is the right person to have the distinction of being Trinity's first female Dean of Faculty.

room doubles in Jarvis.

But hey, there's nothing like being a freshman. Nothing at all. There's nothing like sitting on gymnasium bleachers, listening to lectures on AIDS, poverty, and world peace. There's nothing like spending Christinas money on books you will never read in their entirety. There's nothing like calling home to ask whether colors are washed in Hot, Warm, or Cold. There's nothing like forgetting the combination to the restroom in your dorm after sprinting back from an appointment with your adviser at the other end of campus. And not in a million incarnations is there anything like sharing your room with a chameleon.

"Welcome to Camp Trin-Trin!" I said aloud. And I ignored the rain as I walked.

DONIZETTI'S PIZZA

DELIVERED IN 30 MINUTES OR IT'S FREE!

1502 BROAD ST.

CALL TODAY

246-7209

OPEN 7 DAYS
A WEEK
4:00-2:00

Arts

Fall Season Begins at Austin

by Bob Markee
Arts Editor

Once again we are all privileged to be here at the start of an exciting new season of cultural events care of the Austin Arts Center. For those incoming Freshmen who don't know where or what such a thing is, I suggest you find out immediately.

As an introduction I want to remind everyone of the tremendous amount of talent and ability which exists here at Trinity. Nowhere is this talent exhibited better than in the arts. Whether in the areas of Theatre, Music, Dance, Fine Arts, or Literature, there is an often unnoticed mass of exceptional work produced each year.

This fall there are a number of examples of this talent being prepared right now. The Theatre department's mainstage production this fall will be Yerma by Federico Garcia Lorca. Lenora Champagne will be directing this poetic drama about Spanish family honor and a woman's desire for a child. Yerma will be performed in Goodwin Theater on October 8-11, and includes in its cast some of the finest actors and actresses at Trinity.

Later on in this semester Judy Dworin will be presenting, an Asian-inspired adaptation of Antoine Saint-Exupery's The Little Prince. This will be done in collaboration with students in the Asian Dance/Drama Seminar, so this performance will be the outcome of an entire semester of work. It will be seen in the Seabury studios on December 3-6.

One other work must be noted lest you think the Theatre department will be satisfied with the above. On December 10-12 at the Goodwin Theater, Theatre Artist-in-Residence Mohammad B. Ghafari will be performing An Evening with Chekhov. He will be performing three one act plays by this master playwright who mixes comedy and tragedy in one and who brings out both wanted and unwanted emotions in an audience.

On the subject of Theatre, Trinity's Jesters are scheduled to be presenting some one-act plays on October 13-14. Although it is not known which plays Jesters will be doing, it is certain that they will live up to their usual standards.

Not to be outdone, the Music department also has planned a number of exciting events, although A Canteen Caberet, a collection of songs and skits from World War I and II, has been postponed to spring semester. The most notable of these will be this fall's Annual Musical Theatre Revue. This revue will be presenting excerpts from Broadway shows including A Chorus Line, Bye Bye Birdie, Hair, Purlie, Godspell, and others. Gerald Moshell will be directing this, and it will be choreographed by Scott Collishaw. It will be seen November 5-8.

Also care of the Music department there will be presented A German Requiem by Johannes Brahms. This will be held in the Chapel and performed by the Connecticut College Chorus and Trinity's own Concert Choir, whose quality work needs no mention here.

Even sooner than these events will be a visit to Trinity by the Howard University Singers who will be in concert on October 2 in the Washington Room. They will be presenting works by Berlioz, Durufle, Thompson, and Brahms, and are reputed to be very good.

Let us not forget that the Chamber Players will, as always, be beginning their season of Sunday afternoon chamber concerts in Hamlin Hall starting November 22. They have a sensational lineup of performers this fall, and should definitely be seen.

One of the most exciting events coming from the Dance department this semester will be the performance of two avant-garde Japanese choreographers and dancers named Eiko and Koma. In addition to their performances on September 25 and 26, they will be offering a master class in movement on the 26th.

Also Trinity's own choreographers' Judy Dworin and Partners: Martynuk/McAdams will be doing two dance concerts in 2 By 2, The first is entitled Quartet with On-lookers on November 19 and 20, while the other is Virgin Forest which will be performed on November 21 and 22. Both dance concerts will be seen in Goodwin Theater.

From the Fine Arts department we can look forward to seeing a number of exhibitions from Trinity's private collections including selections from the George F. McMurray Collection of 19th century American paintings from October 1-28. Also in the lobby of Austin Arts Center there will be an exhibition called "Living Gods, Hindu Faces" which is a collection of photographs of India by Christopher Sholes.

In case you haven't figured it out yet, there are a large number of exciting cultural events to look forward to. All students are strongly encouraged to set! all <!! these presentations.

Poetry Center Plans Fall Events

by Jennifer Ejdmundson

"Expansion" is the key word to describe this year's Poetry Center, the year's itinerary including such extraordinary poets as Elizabeth Libby, Mary Jo Salter, and Stephen Dunn. MilltSilsssti, Director of the Poetry Center, commented, "We hope to expand the activities of the Poetry Center so that every year we can bring a larger and more diverse group of poets to the campus."

The poetry season kicks off Wednesday, September 16, at 4 PM in the Faculty Club in Hamlin Hall, with a reading by Elizabeth Libby. Ms. Libby is a Visiting Assistant Professor of English at Trinity. A reception will follow the reading. Elizabeth Libby has published two books of poetry, The Crowd Inside (1978) and Songs of a Returning Soul (1981). She is currently working on Dead Reckonings, a third book of poetry.

The Faculty Club will also serve as the setting for a reading by another woman poet, leading black poet Dr. Doris Davenport, on Wednesday, September 30, at 8:15 PM. A University of Oklahoma professor, Dr. Davenport has published a number of books of poetry. Dr. James Miller of Trinity's own English Department describes Davenport as "a word magician, a conjure woman, who can hold you spellbound with her poetic performance."

Poet-in-Residence Stephen Dunn highlights the 1987-88 poetry season with a ten day stay on campus from October 10-20. Dunn's stay will include a variety of workshops and two poetry presentations, scheduled for Wednesday, November 11, in the Life Science Center Auditorium, and Tuesday, November 17, in the Goodwin Theater, Austin Arts Center. Both presentations are scheduled for 8:15 PM. A significant portion of Dunn's stay will be spent leading workshops for student writers selected from Hartford area high schools.

Currently a creative writing professor at Stockton State College and Columbia University's MFA Creative Writing Program, Dunn has been published in such national publications as The New Yorker, The Nation, The Atlantic, Antaeus, Poetry, and The American Poetry Review. He has published six volumes of poetry to date and has been awarded a variety of prizes and fellowships for his work.

The Spring poetry season will begin with an evening reading by the Connecticut Student Poets, who will be touring the state as finalists in the Connecticut Student Poetry Competition. This exciting evening of Connecticut's best student poetry will take place on January 27 at 8:15 PM in the Faculty Club.

Student readings will also be a major focus of the Poetry Center during the 1987-88 poetry season at Trinity. Ms. Silvestri hopes to schedule several student readings throughout the course of the spring season in order to encourage student poets to step into the public realm with their work, and to give such students much needed exposure in the local literary community. Student readings will, no doubt, prove to be one of the most exciting aspects of the 1987-88 poetry season at Trinity.

On the Poetry Center and the upcoming season, Silvestri commented, "I see the role of the Center as to bring the famous and the lesser known poets to Trinity College so that students can be exposed to the vast expanse of poetic talent that surrounds them. As for the readings, I would like to continue to enhance attendance, which has been growing year by year."

Jesters entreats you to come.

Jesters!

Jesters

^ Auditions!

Friday, September 18 in

Garmany Hall

2:00 to 5:00 P.M.

All students are asked to prepare a 1-minute monologue. Sign up for an audition time in the Green Room at Austin Arts Center

All Students

Welcome

Jesters!

Arts

20th Century and Baroque Chamber Music Performed

by Sandy Burke
Assistant Arts Editor

On Saturday evening, September 12, 1987, The Trinity College Department of Music presented a program on Chamber Music of the 20th Century and Baroque, performed by Gerald Moshell and various instrumentalists from the Hartford and New Haven areas. The hour-long performance featured a variety of pieces by Milhaud, Bach, Stravinsky, as well as others, with much of the conducting done by Gerald Moshell.

Perhaps the most delightful selection of the evening was the Suite for Violin, Clarinet and Piano (1936) composed by Darius Milhaud and performed by Jean Tai (violin), Curt Blood (clarinet) and Gerald Moshell (piano). In my opinion, this piece was expertly performed, creating a perfect balance and blend of all three instruments. This was especially apparent in the section entitled "Divertissement". In this part of the piece, the listener was hardly aware as each instrument entered and left the flow of the music and was woven into the other instrumental parts.

Equally enjoyable was the Octet for Wind Instruments composed by Igor Stravinsky in 1923. Having various themes throughout, it evoked many images, and created a feeling of constant forward motion and change. All the artists should be commended on their professional performance and enthusiastic delivery.

Also performed was the more classical Trio Sonata for Flute, Violin and Continuo from The Musical Offering (1747), composed by J.S. Bach, the very regal sounding Carillon for four Brass instruments by Louis Couperin, Sonata I by Storl, Canton Settimendeinta by Guami and Canxon Quanta by Gabrieli.

Saturday evening's performance was entertaining and interesting due to its great variety in period and style of composition. Despite a few problems with entrances and endings in a few of the night's offerings, the concert was very well received. Gerald Moshell and the many talented instrumentalists who gave their time should be commended for a professional and enjoyable performance.

Photo by Meryl Levin

Professional clarinetist Curt Blood playing in "Suite for Violin, Clarinet and Piano" in Saturday's concert.

Photo by someone who won't admit it.

Erstwhile Arts Editor, Tory Clawson, in a moment of repose, contemplating Hindu philosophy

Student Art Exhibition in New Mather Art Space

by Joe Ragaglia

After a successful first year, Mather Hall Art Space has become a place for Studio Arts majors to exhibit their works. The Art Space, located on the second floor of Mather, now has a full gallery staff to schedule and maintain the exhibitions throughout the Fall and Spring terms.

This year's curator, Mimi Burns, fills the position vacated by the Art Space founder, Professor Elizabeth Tracy. "Professor Tracy and her students scheduled most of the exhibits for this fall before she left," said Burns.

While the fall shows will exhibit student artwork, Mimi hopes to involve the larger Trinity Community artists in the future. Plans for an Alumni exhibit are tentatively being discussed for either Homecoming weekend or the Reunion weekend in June. Also scheduled in December is an art sale where students can purchase the work of their peers.

Not only the artwork, but also much of the preparations for the exhibits is done by the students. "I take care of the administrative work," explained Burns. "Then Susan Brady, '88, whose work is being displayed, hangs the pieces and labels and prepares the works for exhibition."

On the first or second day of each display, the gallery staff will hold an opening reception to which students are encouraged to come. All events are free and the exhibits can be seen at any time.

Mather Art Space joins the ranks of the Widener Gallery, Garmany Hall, and the library in exhibiting the works of artistic students.

TRINITY COLLEGE

September 25&26, 1987
8:00pm

Eiko + Koma

A Performance Pass Event
For more information and tickets
call the Box Office-
203-527-8062

Heldency gcvldci art fmJe-5 In pan by the ConneJricitl Committlori on the Atu mid ille Njltional
Endowment for iht A(t) through the Ntw England
Foundation for ille A JU.

Foreign Study List

Naae. Hose Address	Period	Proarsm; Its Address	Name, Hoae Address	Period	Pro3raa> Its Address
Banksi Stephen J 88 6 Bel-Aire Drive Plairville. CT 06062	Fall	Hiltiesci Flats*, Don St. Aberdeen AB9 2UU SCOTLAND	DowlinSf Kathleen H 88 13 Roslyn Drive Oakhurstt NJ 07755	Fell	Beaver CCEA/Cslwaa Galway. Ireland (not 3 sailing address)
Beizer. Matthew B 8? 100 Paper Chase Trail Avon. CT 06001	Year	St. Andrews University Faculty of Arts St. Andrews Fife K'yl6 9AJ. SCOTLAND	ducids? Rebecca T 90 13 Emerson Stree.Apt.306 Portland. HE 04101	Year	Univ. of Toronto Toronto. CANADA (not a Hailind address)
Bennett. Kristin A 89 9 Roanoke «elleslea» HA 02181	Fall	Beaver CCEA/KinS's c/o Shield House 26. Egerton Gardens London SW2 3BP. ENGLAND	Duff) Elizabeth G 89 63 Hidwood Road Deer Park Greenwich. CT 06830	Fall	Chapelle St. Antoine 5i rue Fiduree 84000 Avisnon.FRANCE
Boelhouden Pieter J 8? 359 Pine Lane Wethersfield. CT 06109	Fall	IES/London/Socisl Sci. 17 Blooasbura Sauare London HC1 ENGLAND	Dunham Charlotte A 89 206 Washington Lane Ft Washington. PA 19034	Fall	Beaver CCEA/INSTEP 11 Palace Court London H2 ENGLAND
Bridges. Hark A 89 Lyford Cay Box N-777& Nassau 000.	Fall	Eusoff Coll.. Nassin Wins Nassim Roed SINGAPORE 1025	Enery. John A 89 PO Box 160 40 Uindrush Lane Osterville. HA 02655	Fall	Beaver CCEA/INSTEP 11 Palace Court London U2 ENGLAND
Buxbaua. Hara B 89 33 East 70th Street New York. NY 10021	Fall	IAU/AviSnon Chapelle St. Antoine 5. rue FiSuere 84000 Avisnon. FRANCE	Farans. Claudia C 89 76 South corpo Road Westport. CT 06880	Fall	Beaver CCEA/Hutanities c/o Shield House 26» Eaerton Gardens London SU2 3BP. ENGLAND
Carleton. David H 90 P.O. Box 146 Dublin? m 03444	Fall	McGill University Hontresl. CANADA (not a Bailing address)	Ferguson. Helissa J 89 14 Cherry Tree Place Harrisbursfi IL 62946	Year	IES/Vienna Palais Corbelli Johannesdasse 7 A1010 Vienna. AUSTRIA
Carlstroa. Marianne 89 33 Hollies Road NewburSh. NY 12550	Year	St. Andrews University Faculty of Arts St. Andrews Fife Kyl6 9AJ» SCOTLAND	Fiske. Any B 89 1 Sunset Fara Road West Hartford. CT 06107	Year	Edinburgh University Edinburgh. Scotland (not 3 nailing address)
Clauson. Victoria R 89 50 Pickle Brook Road Bernsrdsville. NJ 07924	Fall	c/o Visitor's Hall The U.S. Eabassy Kathaandu, NEPAL	Freytasf. Gavin K 89 7955 Riverside Drive Dublin. OH 43017	Fall	IAU/Avignon Chapelle St. Antoine 5. rue Fiauere 84000 AviSnon* FRANCE
Coffesi Justine K 89 3 Canterbury Lane St Davids. PA 190B7	Year	University Coll,. London London. England (not 3 sailing address)	Frielinssdorf. Nancy U 89 1870-BuckinSton Chesterfield. MO 63017	Fall	Beaver CCEA/Kinsi's c/o Shield House 26. Eserton Gardens London SH2 3BP. ENGLAND
Cote* Nancy J 89 71 Frances Ann Drive Oakville. CT 06779	Fall	Univ.of Virginia/Valencia c/o Dr. A. Li Garcia Apartado 2005 Valencia^ SPAIN	Hallisey. Mary K 89 14 Johnson Road Avon. HA 02322	Year	University Coll.. Dublin
Crosiwelb RidSels H 89 6709 Georgia Street Chevy Chase- HO 20815	Fall	Beaver CCEA/Queen Hsry c/o Shield House 26. E&rton Gardens London S«2 3BP. ENGLAND	Hansieni Susan I 89 22 Far* Street Hedfield. HA 02052	Fall	EIL/Nepal Ksthaandu. Nepal (not a sailing address)
Cudlipp. Nancy 89 645 East 14th St Apt 9C New York. NY 10009	Year	UEA/SOC Econ. I Soc. Studies University Plain. Norwich Norfolk NR4 7TJ* ENGLAND	Hoftann. Resian S 89 359 Hoosanonsa Road Stas Hill Fara Pennination. NJ 08534	Year	KESGL 11 York Ter-race East London NW1 4PT FMRI iun
Cuinindst Robert J 89 51 Mary Street Hawthorn Victoria 3122000	Year	51 Hary Street Hawthorn. Victoria 3122 AUSTRALIA	Holt. Rebecca L 89 65 Pine Street Ellsworth. HE 04605	Year	Tufts in Hadrid Hsdrid. Spgin (not a asiling address)
Curies. Susan L 69 58 Hillcrest Ave. tfethersfield. CT 06109	Year	IES/Durhan University of Durhaa Old Shire Hall Durhat DH1 3HP. ENGLAND	Johnson. Nicole S 89 6306 Huirlands Drive La Jolla. CA 92037	Year	Columbia in Paris Reid Hall 4. rue de Chevreuse Paris 75006. FRANCE
DeLuca. Lauren N 89 6 Rocky Point Road Rowaston. CT 06853	Fall	IAU/Avianon Chapelle St. Antoine 5. rue Fiauerre 84000 Avianon. FRANCE	Kehl. Jennifer S 89 33 The Neck Hanhasset, NY 11030	Fall	PRESHCO/Cordoba Univers. de Cordoba Plz. del Cardenal Sslazar Cordoba. SPAIN
Dillon. [Catherine D 89 937 Phelps Road Teaneck. NJ 07666	Fall	Beaver CCEA/Lancaster Lancaster. England (not a salUna address)	Krall. Cynthia L 89 2 Tunbridae Circle Haverford. PA 19041	Fall	Besver CCEA/Loitdon Poly e/o Shield Hoks« 2&t Esertaft Gardens Ior-tr. W 3BP. ENGLAND

Foreign Study List

N3»> hose Aadre»	Period	f ffpSr3a> Its HQoress	Name, Hose Aadre»s	Period	Program* Its Address
Krause. Andr^e 3*		56, rue de Passu 75016 Paris FRANCE	Panos> Tis S 89 17107 13th m Seattle, MA 98177	Year	London School of Eton. London, England (not a sailing address)
185 Green's Fares Road Westport, CT 06880
Lane. Hark U 89	Fall	Beaver CCEA/INSTEP 11 Palace Court London W2 ENGLAND	Peters, Pike H 89 P. O. Box 163 Tesuoue, HH 87574	Fall	PRESHCO/Cordoba Univers. de Cordoba Plz, del Catdenal Ssla^sr Cordoba. SPAIN
43 Otis Street Newton. HA 02160
Lewis, Cynthia M 89	Fall	Beaver CCEA/London Poly c/o Shield House 26, Estrton Gardens London SW2 3BP. ENGLAND	Piacente, Adas J 88 861 Broadview Highland Park. IL 60035	Fall	Beaver CCEA/INSTEP 11 Palace Court London W2 ENGLAND
30 SulSrave Road West Hartford. CT 06107
Lloyd, David H 88	Fall	Beaver CCEA/Queen Mary c/o Shield House 26. Ederton Gardens London SW2 3BP. ENGLAND	Pierce. Janice M 89 15 Ard«ore Court North Andover. MA 01845	Year	Tufts in Madrid Calle de Recoletos h 3 28001 Madrid, SPAIN
100 Skippack Pike Aabler. PA 19002
Loiacono, A»« 89	Fall	Yale-in-China Off,Intl.Stud.Prss. c/o United Coll..Chin.Unv Shatin, N.T., HONG KONG	Pitts, Anurew J 88 6 Ruddock Road Sudbury, MA 01776	Fall	Syracuse in Florence Plaza Savonarola 15 1-50132 Florence ITALY
19 Glenuood Avenue New London, CT 06320
Lynch? Tara C 89	Year	Trinity Collese/Dublin Dublin, Ireland (not a sailing address)	Polci. Kristin L 88 1179 Christian Road Hiddlebury, CT 06762	Fall	Beaver CCEA/York c/o Shield House 26i Esertan Gardens London SU2 3BP, ENGLAND
33 Pleasant Street Canton. HA 02021
Hallaney, John B 88	Year	BESGL 11 York Terrace East London NW1 4PT ENGLAND	Port, David A 89 20 Chester Street Brookfield, CT 06804	Fall	IES/London/Huaanities 17 Blooasbur* Sauare London WCT ENGLAND
721 East Benton Street Horris, IL 60450
Haloney, Richard J 89	Fall	Beaver CCEA/Kina's c/o Shield House 26. Eserton Gardens London SK2 3BP, ENGLAND	Ravera. David A 89 1006 Timber Lane BridSewster, NJ 08807	Year	London School of Econ. London, Enaland <not a asilinS address>
11 Hyder Street Hestboro, HA 01581
HcEttrick. Mara M 89	Year	UEA/EAS EnSl.XAser. Studies University Plain. Norwich Norfolk NR4 7TJ. ENGLAND	Reavey, Catherine A 89 25 Winkler Road Sayrevillc, NJ 08872	Fall	SOAS/Univ. of London Hslet Street London UC1E 7HP ENGLAND
732 Litchfield Santa Barbara, CA 93109
HcKee, Elizabeth H 89	Fall	Drew in London 30 Cleveland Sauare Bayswater London W2. ENGLAND	Rochlin? Adas T B9 2200 North Central Road Fort Leej NJ 07024	fall	Besver CCEA/INSTEP 11 Palace Court London «2 ENGLAND
67 Turtle Back Road New Canaan, CT 06840
Hellor, CraiS R 89	Fall	Beaver CCEA/INSTEP/Cbrdae yarkworth House Karkworth Terr. Casbridsie CB1 1EE ENGLAND	Rouet Brim V 89 8025 Peregrine Lane Cincinnati, OH 45243	Fail	Tafts in Hadrid Madrid, Spain (not a nailing address)
21 Prospect Street Ht Kisco. NY 10549
Hichelizza. Maria Teresa 89	Fall	IAU/Msnon Chspelle St. Antoioe 5, rue FiSuere 84000 Avianon, FRANCE	Banker, Daniel A 88 136 Bindhsa Avenue Ru»son, NJ 07760	Fall	t/o Off. Intrntl.Studies Kitskatahako-cho 16.-1 Hirskata, Osaka 573 JAPAN
419 Griffin Road South Windsor. CT 06074
Honti, Michelle L 89	Year	4 rue de Chevreuse 75006 Paris FRANCE	Scollam Kevin F 89 630 Hills Street East Hartford, CT 06118	Fall	UEft/EAS Ensl.lAner, Studies Universita Plsin, Nornich Norfolk NR4 7TJ, ENGLAND
4 Colonial Lane Canton, HA 02021
Nyhsn. Paul L 89	Fall	Syracuse in Strasbourg 7. rue Schiller 67000 Strasbourg FRANCF	Silver. Edith U 89 890 Pebble Hill Road Doylestown. PA 18901	Fall	Beaver CCEA/Huasnities c/o Shield House •26, Eserton Gardens London S«2 3BP, ENGLAND
178 Hancock Street Casbridie, HA 02138
O'Gara. Julianne 88	Fall	fichsrd'jon'hi*iHtsnssh IK Clayton, Victoria 3168 AUSTRALIA	Sinaletom Trevor H 89 R R 2 Box 581 Brooklyn, CT 06234	Year	IES/Durhas Old Shire Hsll Durham DH1 3HP ENGLAND
514 E Lancaster Ave AptC8 Wannewood, PA 19096
Osrodniki St3cey A 89	Fall	Univ. of Lancaster Lancaster. Enaland (not a sailing address)	Starensien David L 89 207 Holt Road Andover? HA 01810	Fall	Beaver CCEA/INSTEP 11 Palace Court London H2 ENGLAND
11 Bates Road Manchester. CT 06040
Ousley, Sherri R 89	Year	Univ. of Bristol Bristol. England (not a mailing address)	Stebbins. DouSlss C 89 124 Dover Road LotisSedlowi HA 01106	Fall	Beaver CCEA/London Poly c/o Shield House 26, Esierton Gardens London SW2 3BP» ENGLAND
1637 Minerva Granite City. IL 62040

Foreign Study List

Name» Hoae Address	Period	Program* Its Address	Nase* H O M Address	Period	Prodraa* Its Address
StetsonJ Hilary G 89 P. O. Box P St Michaels* MD 21663	Fall	Sen. for Field Studies Kena (not s sailin* address)	Trocki* Lisa Ann H 88 Box 421 Hain Street South Southbury* CT 06488	Fall	Cleve.Inst.Art/Florence S.A.C.I. via dei Ginorir 40 Florence 50129* ITALY
Suh) Eugene U 89 9 Knollwood Road Glen Head. NY 11545	Fall	Yonsei University/Seoul Seoul» Korea (not a nailing address)	TrosUe> Patrick John 89 600 Crains Gap Road Carlisle* PA 17013	Year	St. Hush's College/Oxford Oxford* England (not 3 Bialina address)
Suwaterford* John C S9 2307 Oak Forest Court Arlington* TX 76012	Year	IES/Milan Milan* Italy (not a aailina address)	Uarstesr Landa A 88 2 TR-516 Villa Fontans Carolina* PR 00630	Fall	IES/Hadrid Avenida de Seneca Cole<fio Hayor san Austin 28040* Madrid SPAIN
Thonssi Laura H 89 R.R. 2 Box 81 Pound RidSer NY 10576	Fill	EIL/Indonesis Hudita Inn Reliatan Vbud 80571 Bali* INDONESIA	Uharton* Robert R 89 1111 Bellemore Road B3liti>ore» MB 21210	Fall	Maurice Hall 98-11/) Hi * Rd,S.W<Mdford London E18 2QJ. ENGLAND

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

ELECTIONS WILL BE HELD FRIDAY, SEPT. 18th

Everyone should consider running!
Petitions available in the Student Activities Office

Positions Available:

Secretary
Treasurer
Class Representatives
Budget-At-Large (3)
Rep-At-Large (4)
Off Campus Rep
IDD Rep

Dorm Representatives:

Anadama
Boardwalk
Cremens
Cook
Doonsbury
Elton
Frohman

Funston
Goodwin/Woodward
High Rise (2)
Jackson
Jarvis (s)
Jones
Little Northam
North Campus (2)
Ogilby
Park Place
Robb
Seabury
Smith
Stowe
Wheaton
Wisgins

Announcements

For Your Information:

The Computer Center is seeking Freshman and/or Sophomore for summer positions. Interested students may contact Dale Shoemaker, ext. 595 or in 107 Hallden Engineering from 8:00 AM to 3:00 AM.

The Director of Athletics, Richard Hazelton, wishes to announce a summer job opening as secretary for the National Youth Sports Program. General office skills are needed and the job will run from June through July. Pay-approximately $1,000 for 2 months. For further information, see Hazelton in Ferris Athletic Center.

The following Trinity College departments have job openings for the summer: Academic Computing Support, Administrative Data Systems, Alumni Office, Audio Visual, Biology, Buildings and Grounds, Calendar Office, Child Care Center, Dean of Students, Financial Aid Office, Graduate Studies, Hallden Technical Support Services, Library, Physical Education, Post Office, and the President's Office. Most jobs pay $4.50-$5.00 per hour. Contact the departments listed for more specific information.

The National Federation of the Blind of Connecticut Inc. announces its 1987 Howard E. May Honorary Scholarship and Jonathan May Memorial Scholarship competition. Both scholarships worth $1000.00 apiece will be awarded to an individual pursuing or planning to pursue a full-time college education. Federation scholarships are awarded on the basis of academic excellence, service to the community and financial need. All applicants must be legally blind and from Connecticut or studying in Connecticut, although membership in the National Federation of the Blind is not necessary. Applications for National Federation of the Blind of CT scholarships must be submitted by August 15, 1987. Address any questions to: Ronald Connelly, Scholarship Chairperson, NFB of CT, 600 Asylum Avenue, Apt. 727, Hartford, CT., 06105.

NOW, the National Organization for Women, is sponsoring an essay contest to coincide with the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. The contest is open to all high school and college students with the prize being the awarding of several scholarships. The topic to be discussed is: Do We Need an Equal Rights for Women Amendment to the U.S. Constitution? The deadline for entry is September 30. Further information and entry forms can be obtained through writing the Now Foundation Essay Contest, 1401 New York Ave., N.W., Suite 800, Washington, D.C. 20005.

A reminder that Reading Days have been established to enable students to finish papers, catch up on required reading, and study intensively for final examinations. Use by students of College facilities during this period is as follows: during Reading Days and finals students may reserve usual facilities but curfews will be moved up by one hour to midnight Sunday through Thursday and 1:00 A.M. on Friday and Saturday nights. Attendance in each facility will be limited to 100 people in order to avoid large noisy parties. It is important to note that Reading Days rules apply also to the final exam period., May 14 - 20.

The News Bureau in the public relations office is seeking two student assistants to work during the summer. Job responsibilities include routine correspondence, the writing and production of news releases, involvement in the editorial production of the Student Handbook, filing-, and mailing. Required skills are the ability to type and to think and work independently. A knowledge of word processing is preferred. Please contact Roberta Jenekes or Liz Natale at 527 - 3151, ext. 217.

Eight tutors in math, science, and English skills are needed for the month of July (July 6 - 30) for the Connecticut Pre-Engineering Program at Trinity. Students will be seventh through ninth graders from Hartford schools. Compensation will be $1000 for the four weeks. For further information, contact Naomi Amos, Faculty Grants Office, at extension 888, as soon as possible.

The Connecticut Writer magazine is now accepting original manuscripts for its Sixth Annual Writing Awards. Writers may enter unpublished works in the categories of poetry and fiction before the deadline of August 31, 1987. In addition to being published in the magazine, first and second place winners receive cash prizes of $100 and $75 respectively. Manuscripts must be accompanied by an official entry form. Persons interested in obtaining more information should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: THE CONNECTICUT WRITER, Sixth Annual Writings Awards, P.O. Box 10536, West Hartford CT 06110.

On Saturday, Sept. 19 the Sixth Connection Women's Congress will present a conference entitled "The Role of Women in the World of Power and Politics." Location is the American School for the Deaf in West Hartford from 8:30 am to 5:30 pm.

The Annual Harvest Festival at Haight Vineyard will be held September 19th and 20th from 11:00 am to 5:00 pm. This year the features will include grape crushing demonstrations, continuous winery tours, and an old fashioned grape stomping contest. Admission $2.50 Call 1-800-325-5567.

Wednesday:

The French Table will be held in the cafeteria every Wednesday from 5:30 PM on. All students wishing to practice their French are welcome to attend. Also, the French soiree will be held every Thursday from 10:00 PM on in Doonesbury B4. Refreshments and typical French food will be served. No proper attire required. If you need help or have questions about the French language, come to Sylvie every Thursday from 5:00 PM to 8:00 PM in the Cave.

The 18th Annual Plumb Memorial Carillon Concerts will be outdoors on the Trinity College Quadrangle from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM on Wednesday evenings from June 17 through August 19, following the Trinity Summer Series concerts which will be held at 6:00 PM in the Trinity College Chapel. The public is invited to attend, free of charge, and to bring blankets, lawn chairs, and picnic suppers. The 1987 series was organized by Trinity College Carillonneur Daniel K. Kehoe, a 1978 Trinity graduate. A special Fourth of July carillon concert will be given by Kehoe on Saturday, July 4 from 8:00 PM to 9:00 PM free of charge.

On Wednesday, Sept. 16 a lecture titled "Historical Perspectives on the Computer Revolution" will be given by Frank Rose, author of "In the Heart of the Mind - A History of Artificial Intelligence." Austin Arts Center.

Thursday:

On Thursday, Sept. 17 an exhibition entitled "Connecticut Fine Art and Furniture" will be organized by Liverant and Son and the Connecticut Gallery. It can be seen at the Old State "House through Oct. 6.

To help enjoy Japan Week in Hartford the Old State House will be hosting exhibits of kimonos, origami, and Bonsai in the Secretary of State's Office and the House Chamber, second floor on Sept. 17.

Personals:

Compulsive gambler looking to join or form weekly poker game. Call Mark 246-3405.

On Tuesday the 15th, (tonight), Trinity's ConnPIRG will have a general interest meeting at 7:00 P.M. Seabury 15. We hope to encourage more students to become involved in the continuance of the environmental and hunger issues that ConnPIRG worked on last year as well as our new campaigns with voter registration and nuclear power.

Quit smoking.

T.C.A.C. Proudly Presents

"I want my MTV!"

MTV announces the outrageous off-the-wall contestant search.

Do you know what high school the Brady Bunch attended?
How about what band did David Lee Roth play in before Van Halen?

If you think your knowledge of TV and music trivia is up to par — be sure to try out on SEPTEMBER 15th in the Washington Room at 4:30 p.m.

For more information, call 246-1011

World Outlook

Quote of the Week

"I'm not a hawk, I'm a dove — a heavily armed dove."

— Jack Kemp

"Doves that are too heavily armed don't fly."

— Richard Gephardt.

Who's In Charge?

by Peter Schwartzman

Over the past few months we have seen the unraveling of American foreign policy and the methods which are used to create and implement it. The Iran-Contra affair revealed an administration that was careless in its planning and ineffective in its execution. Not only did the hearings bring to light the technical problems involved in the policy process; it demonstrated the retarded state of ideology fomenting that policy. The motivation behind the ideology is a question of primary importance at this time. The Reagan administration must answer this question and move forward or be faced with the continued decline of U.S. prestige and power in the world.

Iran-Contra hearings that he did not object to the policy because he thought he would be viewed as unfaithful, or even worse, a communist. This statement was a signal that both the members and the policies of the administration had better be analyzed.

The latter belief is being demonstrated by Persian Gulf actions. This policy, motivated partly by our hatred of Iran and a desire to maintain a "presence" is a childish and ill-informed one. If the U.S. is going to have forces in the Gulf, the reason should be to protect our shipping and that of our allies. The administration appears to be using the reflagging as a smokescreen to maintain our naval ships in the gulf. This policy still regards the Soviet Union as a constant threat, an idea that hinders our decision making options.

These faltering policies are characterized by two beliefs: 1. Anyone who goes against the policy set within the administration is subject to intense scrutiny. 2. The fear that where the U.S. does not exert its influence, the Russians will fill the gap. Both of these beliefs hearten back to the paranoid containment policies of the 1950's and 1960's. It is as though the "domino theory" still rules the halls of the White House. The initial belief was clearly demonstrated when former National Security Advisor Robert MacFarlane stated during the

Will the future see the U.S. follow its previous ineffective road, or turn towards a stable and cohesive ideology? Policymakers must be more enlightened than they have been in the past. Persian Gulf policy is in desperate need of direction, with an attack by Iran needed to revive it. However bleak the scene may seem, there is still much to praise the administration for, especially its attitude towards the new Central American peace initiative and towards arms control.

The End of North's Heroism

by Ronald J. Silverman

After watching the recent Iran-Contra hearings, I find myself surprised by the outpouring of public support directed towards Lt. Colonel Oliver North. Representative of this support is the flood of telegrams the Colonel has personally received and the amount of pro-North communication received by Congressional offices such as that of Congresswoman Barbara B. Kennelly (D-CT), which received pro-North mail during the first week of his testimony that was numerically nineteen times greater than that of the opposition.

One can quickly identify several reasons why Col. North had received so much sympathetic public sentiment. He is telegenic, and as a result of his forthright and beleaguered appearance has attracted much support. Many people also identify with the picture of North trying to carry out patriotic and idealistic goals despite the restraints of a hindering bureaucracy. They feel that even though North and his compatriots may have brushed against the underside of a few rules and regulations, the harm that may have been caused by those violations is far outweighed by the duties North was attempting to complete in the interest of the United States.

However, there is a more subtle and important reason that the public has not understood fully. This is that the Congressional Iran-Contra committee has not pursued its investigation with the purpose of exposing the specific improprieties conducted by NSC personnel, but rather, has followed an objective of determining how much the President knew of the details of the operation. As a result of focusing on this priority, the violations committed by North and Co. have taken on a somewhat nebulous haze, causing those offenses to lose their significance in the public eye.

Yet in reality, the wrongdoings perpetrated by North and associates consist not of mere regulatory infractions, but violations of both broad Constitutional directives of the deepest import, and specific laws of the United States of equal substance. In regard to those violations, one may conclude, with almost universal concordance that the arms for hostages deal was bad policy. But even more deleterious than bad policy to a democratic system is the perpetration of bad "process"; that is, the "means" to an end, as carried out by Col. North.

North and his associates conspired once to circumvent U.S. law prohibiting government agencies or entities from sending aid to the Contras, and conspired again to cover up their efforts. Not only were those activities unethical and improper, but they may well prove to have been illegal. Though North and the NSC, the CIA, and private associates entertained private and foreign sources to gather funds for the contras, government staff, time, and resources were used to conduct the funding search. This may prove to be inviolation of the

Bork Hearings Set to Begin

by Bill Sullivan

The Senate Confirmation Hearings for Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork begin this week, but political posturing will certainly overshadow any idealistic notions of justice.

Sen. Robert Dole (R-KS) should be one of Bork's strongest advocates, but by staying independent (not one of his strengths), he could greatly increase his chances for the Presidency. That would leave Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-UT) to stake out more ideological ground.

Sen. Joe Biden (D-DE) will lead the fight against Bork's confirmation, just as he tried to prevent William Rehnquist's elevation to Chief Justice last year. Biden has been doing his best imitation of Jack Kennedy for a while now, and he hopes that image can vault him into the White House in 1988. He also knows that the hearings could give him the television audience and the name recognition that he needs to make a move.

Biden's ambition, however, could end up hurting him. He has delayed the hearings for months so he could reserve center stage for himself, instead of being shuffled off to the side while the Iran-Contra investigation grabbed all the headlines. All the while, he was giving it the big song and dance; the Committee needed time to prepare to give Bork a "fair hearing." Meanwhile, a man was put to death in the Louisiana electric chair while the Supreme Court sat deadlocked on the issue, 4-4. The case was alive, but a majority vote was required to stay the execution. Biden has also flip-flopped more than a fish washed up on the beach. He initially opposed Bork, but almost immediately reverted to neutrality. A few weeks later, at the pleading of special interest groups, he promised to fight the nomination tooth and nail.

The anti-Bork crusade is in full swing, complete with all-night speeches and candlelight vigils. The American Civil Liberties Union, the AFL-CIO, and the National Organization for Women are only a few of the groups which seem to want to re-establish themselves by opposing the nomination on purely political and ideological grounds. Yet such actions seem only to alienate them further from mainstream America.

Sen. Ted Kennedy (D-MA) has called Bork a "judicial hyperactivist who would overrule dozens of precedents and reverse decades of progress toward greater justice in America." Such "Chicken Little polemics," as writer Max Lerner has referred to the hyperbole streaming from the liberal side, have dominated the Bork debate. That hyperbole is not only inaccurate, but it insults the integrity of a man whose legal acumen has been praised even by those who do not share his ideology.

Robert Bork believes in judicial restraint and the original intent of the framers of the Constitution. This indicates that he will turn his attention to the Constitutionality of new laws, and not to reversing old decisions. If anything, he can help curtail an activist judiciary, one which has created rights out of thin air. That is Ted Kennedy's "progress."

Ultimately, ideology is the operative word. Contrary to popular belief, there is no such thing as an objective judiciary. A majority in the Supreme Court is created at the polls, with presidential majorities. Every Court decision is result-minded to some extent; Bork's confirmation would lessen that tendency.

While the hearings will likely say nothing about Robert Bork's ability to sit on the Supreme Court, they will be a test of political power both for President Reagan and for the political parties.

Boland Amendment,

Regardless of the possible violation of Boland, the laws requiring any covert operation conducted outside the CIA to be specifically designated and authorized by Presidential finding were simply ignored. Furthermore, North, as well as various of his associates, lied to Congressional committees charged with oversight of covert operations, lied to the American people, and destroyed evidence and government property in order to hide his actions.

To conclude, then, the terrible misdeeds of North and Co. are in fact real and definable. They fall into two categories: First, the violation, or at least attempted circumvention of the law and the legislative branch. Second, and possibly even more important that breaking U.S. law, North and Co.

engaged in a process which implemented, and tried to perpetuate a self-sustaining foreign policy entity which operated without the knowledge of a single elected United States government official. In the eyes of North, U.S. law, checks and balances, accountability, and Constitutionality, the very cornerstones of the efficiency of our Democratic system, were to be damned. That is inexcusable in any context.

BLOOM COUNTY

toy Berke Breathed

THE 1

TRINITY COLLEGE · HARTFORD · CONNECTICUT P<sup>1</sup>BB>Hff<sup>1</sup>Hail®

TRINITY TKIPOD

JOIN THE TRINITY TRIPOD STAFF

WE'RE LOOKING FOR WRITERS,
COPY EDITORS, ADVERTISING AND BUSINESS STAFF, PRODUCTION
STAFF, AND PHOTOGRAPHERS.
NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY

Sports

Soccer to Score with New Attitude

by Layne Pomerleau
Tripod Sports Writer

This year's Women's Soccer team is undoubtedly a squad full of promise. The team has a potent combination of both young and old blood which, when combined, may prove to be lethal to all other Division III opponents.

First year coach Maureen Pine hopes to improve upon last year's 3-9-1 record. With some new ideas and a positive attitude, she should bring the Lady Bants back on the winning track. According to many of the players, the positive feeling she has been creating during pre-season practices will carry over into the regular season and should make a real difference in the closer games.

Among those players returning for the Lady Bants are seniors Lisa Lake and co-cptain Betsy Karetnik. Lake should continue to be a defensive force on the playing field and Karetnik, despite her small size, packs a big punch in any facet of the game.

The team is also pleased to have the services of junior Julie Sullivan, once again. Sullivan, who took last season off, has returned even better than before. Sullivan will be seeing some playing time on the field as well as sharing net duties with sophomore Lisa Banks, who shows great promise in goal.

Other returning players who will add strength and depth to the team are juniors, co-captain Layne Pomerleau, Claudia DePalma, Cathy Walsh, a defensive rock, and sophomore Cathy Ennis, who will without a doubt be the Lady Bants big scorer. Also returning will be invaluable sophomore mid-fielders Debbie Glew and Laura Weaver, as will be juniors Melissa Hobbie and Jen Ducar who are threats at both ends of the field.

The Lady Bants can also look to be talented, crop of new players, in fact, this year's freshmen show a lot of promise. They are needed to step into the shoes of the seniors who have been lost to graduation.

Defensively, the team will be looking to Margery Peskin and Jennifer Manley. Showing great offensive potential are Kattya Lopez, whose shooting skills should take some of the pressure off of Ennis, Chris Lindsey, whose speed and passing ability make her an all-around threat, Catherine Hewitt who will be an offensive spark, and Payton Tansill who will be an important addition to the forward line. First year sophomores Karen Farquhar and Heidi Wisbach should also be seeing some playing time.

At press time the Lady Bants were to travel to Amherst on Sunday to take on Amherst, Smith and Mt. Holyoke in a four team round-robin scrimmage. The Lady Bants will open their regular season at home, as they play host to Bowdoin on Saturday, September 19, for the start of what looks to a successful season.

Co-captain Layne Pomerleau '89 will lead Women's Soccer.

Photo by Meryl Levin.

Men's XCountry Awaits Run To Top

by Bruce Corbett
Tripod Sports Writer

Size and strength could be the two factors that lead the 1987 Trinity men's Cross Country team to one of its winningest seasons in recent history. With twenty (20) names on the official roster, including some up and coming runners, this fall should be the year that the men break the Wesleyan curse.

Although graduates captain Paul Deslandes and the inspirational Steve Balon will be sorely missed, the twelve new faces on the team should be more than able to fill their shoes. Perhaps the brightest newcomer on the team, Chris Diekerson, will be competing for the #1 spot. Diekerson is no newcomer to Cross Country though, as he is an experienced junior transfer from Bentley.

In addition to its larger size, the team is also looking at a very strong lead pack of runners, the top seven. Joining Diekerson at the top will be returning senior co-captains Craig Gemmel and Matt Donahue. The fourth through eighth spots are presently unclear, as fr talented runners will be vying for those spots.

Among those competing for the positions, senior Boss Burdick is running very strongly and should contribute to the team's success. Junior Sam Adams is always a threat but at the present is experiencing knee problems. However, he is in fine shape and should make a strong comeback.

The returning sophomore trio of Steve Anderson, Bruce Corbett and Mike Fagan should also contest for some spots, as they are much stronger than last year, having a year of experience under their belts. Sophomore Mike Joyce, who ran the Boston Marathon last spring, and freshman Matt Maguire both have the potential to make immediate contributions to the varsity squad.

The team is also pleased to incorporate several runners who are mainly training for shorter distances and the upcoming spring varsity track season, including Russ Alderson '89, Rob Sohn '90, Rich Dipreta '91 and Aaron Sobel '90.

Coach Alex Magoun has expressed uninhibited optimism when asked to comment on the upcoming season, and hopes to end the Wesleyan Curse by beating the local NESCAC rival for the first time in more than fifty (50) years. This year's pack could be the team to break that curse, as competition for positions within the team should strengthen the runners both individually and as a team.

The Bantams will travel to Vassar College on Saturday, September 19 to to compete in the Vassar College Invitational for their first meet of the season.

Volleyball Prepared For Winning Season

by Liz Smith
Tripod Sports Writer

Volleyball Spikes Again! The women's volleyball team is working hard and looking forward to its best season ever! Under the leadership of a new coaching staff and a number of returning players, the team is ready to begin what should be the most successful season in their short history.

Stan Ogrodnick, the men's head basketball coach, has assumed the head coaching position for the volleyball team. His numerous years, of successful coaching should prove to provide a strong competitive volleyball team. When asked how he felt about being the new women's volleyball coach, Coach Ogrodnick stated, "When I said yes, I planned to give 100% to this season, I don't, do anything halfheartedly".

The new Assistant Dean of Students, Kirk Peters, will assist Ogrodnick. Peters has coached volleyball on the division one level and his knowledge of ilic game is immense. He is helping to train the team not only physically but mentally. Peters remarks that he "has already seen a great deal of improvement and we have only been together for a week."

Senior co-captains Kristen Cadolina and Kathleen Strauss will lead the Lady Bants for the second year. They will be supported by the returning sophomores Emily Knack and Beth Clifford, juniors Chris Gilson and Sue Stenick, and seniors Debbie Smith, Chever Voltmer, and Liz Breiner. The team also has three strong freshmen: Grace, Tinata Yerbrough, and Kimberly Jones.

Last year, the team finished with a record of 8-10 and Ogrodnick would at least like to reverse that record. With the experience of not only the players but the coaches, that should be a very reachable goal. The women are enthusiastic and are looking forward to a great season. The Lady Bants will open their season at home in a dual meet against Emerson and Emmanuel, September 19.

SPORTS BRIEF

Former Trinity quarterback Dan Tighe will be honored September 14 as the New England College athletic Conference/Bank of Boston Male Athlete of the Year for Division III. The award, which is based upon athletic and academic achievement, as well as citizenship, will be presented at an awards luncheon to be held at the Newton Marriott Hotel in Newton, Massachusetts.

As an outstanding quarterback and an exceptional student, Dan Tighe distinguished himself as one of the most honored scholar-athletes at Trinity. A native of Lowell, Massachusetts, Tighe was co-captain and two year starter for the Bants football team. As a junior Tighe performed brilliantly in the unenviable role of replacing eventual Gram Bay Packer Joe Shield, by passing for 1781 yards and 17 touchdowns, and by breaking school records for passing attempts* in a game and in a season. For his stellar performtwee lie wan named 3rd team All-America. As co-captain his senior year Tighe guided the Bants to a "i-A record, including a win over nationally ranked Hamilton.

Tighe, u history ru:llur registered a 47ft cuinulatitt' fil'A and graduated with hfllo>g, and wig eleeU'il by Slt' 'Itum fl:ultj'!" Phi Ritta Kiipittt, lrv<r 'ai 'Tidua-tion he UIM> mta<zi 'in' (iViuye Sheldon McCook Trophy, the most coveted s'athletic award at Trinity. He was also ti,3-winntr >>> the Trinity E.C.A.i'. Schnlsir-AthleSe Award fl:tr s'ltitMarsdnj:, fr-rVir-inanci* it. 'U'juitt'u'it.* nnt afSiltit.M.

This f:it! Tighe' wiii in: ror,?iutitng his <kiCttit>rt at lii** <?>* York University Sti<oi>i <fl Liw

Sports

Field Hockey Ready For Title Defense

by Ellie Pierce and Laura von Seldeneck
Tripod Sports Writers

The Trinity women's Field Hockey team has won 24 straight games and head coach Robin Sheppard and her players are preparing to continue that streak. Led by senior co-captains Ellie Pierce and Laura von Seldeneck, the squad is determined to defend its 1986 NIAC title.

Taking into account the loss of five seniors to graduation, last year's undefeated season will be a tough act to follow. However, the gaps are being filled and the team is shaping into what looks to be another winner.

Returning starters he Pierce-Brewster combo has been together for 4 years and has proved to be a successful goal scoring team. Midfield will controlled by seniors Celinda Shannon, Amy Folta and Diane Christie, with help from sophomore Molly Verbeck.

Defense will be led by returning starters von Seldeneck and junior Gretchen Bullard. Adding their talents to the backfield will be senior Alyssa Kolowrat and sophomore Sarah Crissman. In the net, senior Kate Scanlon and freshman Louise Van der Does will be seeing action.

Pre-season action for the Lady Bantams has been successful thus far. In a 5-0 win over Division I Fairfield, (Trinity being Division III), the team demonstrated not only their ability to score goals, but also their defensive capabilities, as the defense and goal combined to shut out their opponents. The offense was provided by Pierce, who scored a pair of goals, with Campbell, Brewster, and von Seldeneck adding single tallies.

The Lady Bants traveled to Smith College to compete in the Smith College six team roundrobin Jamboree this past weekend. There, the Lady Bants continued to dominate their opponents, beating MIT, Wheaton, Conneticut College and Southeastern Massachusetts. They finished their exhausting day with a scoreless tie against the always tough Colby squad.

The junior varsity team is also looking strong this year and hopes to be as successful as last year's winning squad. The presence of the JV squad to fine tune and condition younger players has always added an extra edge to future varsity players, and this year's team is no exception as many talented freshmen vyed for spots on the team.

Sheppard's Bants will begin their title defense and their regular season away against Western Connecticut on Thursday night. The team is eagerly awaiting its Saturday home opener, when the Bantams will play host to their perennial NIAC rivals from Bowdoin.

If the pre-season success of Trinity Field Hockey is an indicator of what to expect during the regular season, the Trinity community can look forward to another NIAC championship for Coach Robin Sheppard and her players.

Field Hockey should repeat as NIAC champs.

Photo by Meryl Levin.

Ducks Set To Defend Title

by Chris Coxon
Tripod Sparts Writer

Fall means three things: dead leaves, pitcher nights at the View, and Trinity Waterpolo. Returning after their most successful season in recent history, the Ducks have many reasons to be optimistic about the upcoming campaign.

Last fall, Trinity won the N.E.S.C.W.P.C. (New England Small College Waterpolo Conference, for all you neophytes out there) Championship at Bates College, defeating the host and favorite Bates 12-10 in the final game of the Tournament. This was an amazing acheivement for a team with only nine active players, but one made possible by the Ducks' experience and teamwork.

The team will be hurt by the graduation of key seniors Tim Anderson and Stu "the animal" Sziklas, but should remain competitive with the return of many of last season's successful contributors. Scoring punch will be provided by co-captains Nick Clifford '88 and Chris Coxon '89, with help from sophomores Steve Murdock and Ted "Jones" Foss. Humour will be provided by Alex "Booter" Paidas and "Miami" Steve Weinstein. The Ducks will also be aided by the recruitment of many promising freshmen and sophomore ducklings.

Trinity has a full season scheduled, including games against Clark, Holy Cross, W.P.I., Wesleyan and league powerhouses Bates and Bridgewater State. Also planned are bi-weekly scrimmages with Wesleyan, which will allow the layman to experience the thrills and violence of college waterpolo without leaving the campus.

With the experience of the Ducks veterans and the enthusiasm of the recruits, it looks to be another successful season for Trinity Waterpolo.

Sports Writers needed for:

Men's Soccer
Women's Soccer
Field Hockey

If interested — leave a note in box 1183 or call 246-0743.

Student Trainers Wanted

Experience not necessary.

Work study and CPR/First Aid preferred.

If interested, please contact Peggy or Les at ext. 442

Tae Kwon Do Club

Tae Kwon Do is a Korean Martial Art which deals in self defense and fist and foot fighting.

For information: Box 555
249-4548 or 249-6921

Taught by Master Sang H. Kim
Sixth Degree Blackbelt
Korean National Champion '76
International Collegiate Champion '77
International Military Champion '79
Instructor of the year '83

Sports

EXTRA INNINGS

by Gina M. Letellier

Welcome to yet another year of athletic competition at Trinity and welcome to Extra Innings. As this is my first column, I want to introduce myself to you and tell you a little about my plans for the semester.

In case you didn't pick up on the name of my column, I am an avid baseball fan. For those of you who were sick of Boston sports and sports teams oriented columns — SORRY! To further upset many of you, I must admit that I have always been and forever will be, a Boston Red Sox fan. I was there when Yaz hit his 3000th hit, on tickets given to me in March for my birthday. I am always ready for next year. In fact, this coming next year especially. The '87 Sox rookies have performed admirably; Rocket Roger has finally gotten himself on track, Bruce Hurst can always be depended upon, and I don't think I need to fill all of Extra Innings extolling the virtues of Wade Boggs. When Oil Can comes back and Gedman gets his head on straight — watch out! As for any derogatory comments you may have in mind, send them to me in care of this newspaper, and I'll do my best to try to rebut them.

I'm also having a few problems with my New York Mets fans/friends. They keep patronizing and trying to console fellow Red Sox fans with witty comments like, "Well, at least they are out of the race and you don't have anything to worry about, (snicker, snicker)" Another personal favorite of mine is, "It's not like you have check the sports pages everyday to see if they are still closing in on fourth place." Enough already.

In keeping with the Boston theme, Red Auerbach and the Boston Celtics can do no wrong. The Celtics can never win too many games nor win by too large a margin. Despite the feelings of some individuals from Detroit, Larry Bird could be purple (or black and blue) and he would still be the best to play the game. As for last year's effort against the Lakers — We were supposed to have had Len Bias. Since I'm not one to make excuses, I'll admit that when one considers the injuries the Celts had to contend with, we were lucky to get by Detroit. However, this year should prove to be a different story as Kevin McHale, Robert Parish and the rest of the Green will once again be healthy and Larry Bird will have had time to invent some new left-handed inside shots and passes.

I'd also like to share my feelings with you about WEEK ONE in the NFL. To sum them up, I did not exactly shed too many tears when the players' association set the strike date before the end of this month.

Let's talk about the US Open. Did any of you happen to see Jimmy Connors play Ivan Lendl? I must admit I was rooting for Jimmy as strongly as any other red-blooded American. However, I was taken ashamed at the attitude of many Open spectators towards Ivan. He may be an arrogant ass, but he is also talented and has chosen to make America his home. The least we can do is offer a little encouragement, at the very least, we don't have to applaud when he makes a mistake. Aren't we a little classier than that? Let's hope so.

In case there are any of you still reading this, I'd like to share some of my plans with you. I hope to have sports features written by the Trinity community and myself. I also plan to do some Where Are They Now? stories about former Trinity athletes who have made it to the pros. Of course, I also would welcome any suggestions about articles or features. You can also expect to see interesting sports trivia every week. Some of it familiar, some of it more obscure.

This week's sports trivia is quotations. You have probably heard all of these at one time or another, but I am not sure who said them. You are welcome to keep Score Number 1: "I hit 'em where they ain't." Wheels turning? Number 2: "The opera ain't over till the fat lady sings." Huh? Number 3: "It's not whether you win or lose but how you play the game."

Before I reveal the answers for you, I'd like to regain some readership by saying that although I am a Boston fan, they will not be the only teams which I will talk about. However, I do want my readers to know where I stand. Another thing that is important to mention is supporting Trinity athletics. It really does mean a lot to players to see their classmates out there supporting them. In sports such as football and basketball, the crowd plays an integral part in the outcome of close games.

Sports trivia answers; #1- Wee Willie Keeler of Brooklyn Dodger fame; #2- Dick Motta, former coach of the Washington Bullets (NBA); and lastly, Grantland Rice, possibly the greatest sports writer to have ever lived. I'd like to leave you this week with the words of the immortal Satchel Paige, "Ain't no man can avoid being born average, but there ain't no man got to be common." Thank you.

Beth Cottone '88 is among the top tennis seeds.

Photo by Melissa Hallman.

Tennis Set For Winning Season

By Yani Ewee
Tripod Sports Writer

With the help of some fresh faces out on the courts, the women's tennis team is looking forward to another successful season of competition. Despite losing three players to graduation, the outlook for Trinity tennis is nothing but optimistic.

Head coach Wendy Bartlett decided to keep only twelve players rather than the previous years' sixteen players to represent the team. She hopes that with the fewer number of players, she and assistant coach Dr. Henry DePhillips can spend more time with each team member individually and help each of them improve their game throughout the season. Bartlett commented, "I'm really excited about this very young team. I see a lot of potential among the freshmen as well as the returning upperclassmen. Because we have such a small team, I feel that the comradery that is already beginning to develop among these players will further create strong enthusiasm and spirit during future competition."

In addition to the graduation of three seniors, sophomore Catherine Macaulay has also been lost for the season due to an injury and must spend the season on the bench. Although the team will feel their loss, the addition of four talented freshmen will ably fill the gaps left open. Freshmen Courtney Geelen, Maria Nevares, Ann Nicholson and Heather Watkins are tentatively seeded in four of the top six seeds, and look to make impressive contributions to the team.

Captain Margaret Driscoll '88 realizes the amazing possibilities of great success for this year's team. "Everyone on the team looks prepared to handle a difficult schedule of mostly away matches that faces us. The high quality of freshmen that tried out this year really impressed me. Although they may not have any collegiate experience, I don't think it will take them a great deal of matches before they are confident and competitive out on the courts."

Top seeded senior Beth Cottone agrees, "Although we lost a lot of good players this year, everyone on the team this year looks in good shape. And with some tough practices to come, we should be ready to play competitively in our first match." Cottone, who was out sick for about one month over the summer, has surprised everyone at tryouts with a much improved game plan and looks as if she has been playing everyday since last season.

Last Saturday the tennis team held an informal scrimmage match against a very challenging Middlebury team. The scrimmage offered a chance for the freshmen to get a feel for the things to come. The Lady Bants gained invaluable experience as the players entered multiple matches to help them return to a more competitive mindset. The scrimmage also afforded an opportunity to see how the doubles teams performed in competition.

The Lady Bants hope to revenge close losses to Amherst, Holy Cross, and UCONN during the upcoming season. Trinity's first test will come this week as the team will play boat to UHART on September 15. Other matches this week will pit the Lady Bants against Wellesley away on the 17th and at home again against Amherst on the 19th.

With a smaller team than in the past, and with the help of both experienced veterans and talented freshmen, the Trinity Women's Tennis team is hopeful of continuing their winning tradition.

Learn The Facts,
Hear the tales, feel the emotions
Come to the lecture on Apartheid
In South Africa by Tseke Morathi

Thursday, September 17
at 8:00 in McKook Auditorium

Presented by the International Club

Sports

Crew Teams Anticipate Successful Season

by Eric Hammerstrom
Tripod Sports Writer

As fall practice begins for Trinity's crew team, head coach Bert Apfelbaum is optimistic. With a good number of returning letter winners and a strong group of young rowers, the men's heavy-weight and lightweight boats, and the women's varsity boat should have successful seasons.

Seniors Art Muldoon and Sandy Thomas captain a heavyweight boat comprised of three returnees, while men's lightweight captain Jay Blum '88 leads a crew of four returning lettermen into the fall season. Junior Jud Paschen joins Muldoon and Thomas in the heavy-weight boat, and seniors Tim Connor, Mike Rorick, and Eric Beatty, along with junior Mark Eller, round out the men's lightweight boat.

The fall season will see a lot of new faces in the heavyweight boat. The boat's performance will rest largely on the ability of a strong sophomore class to replace graduating oarsmen. But heavyweight captain Art Muldoon sees conditioning to be the most important factor for success in the fall season, "fall races are three times longer than spring races, so the biggest question for the fall is fitness. I feel we have enough good sophomores to make up a strong boat."

The heavyweight crew sets their sights on defeating Wesleyan this year. "Wesleyan has beaten us each of the last two seasons," explained Muldoon, "so we will be gunning for them this year."

In contrast, the greatest challenge for the lightweights may simply be gaining a spot on the boat. With five returning lettermen and a total of twenty-one lightweights seeking a position on the crew, it looks to be an excellent season for Trinity's lightweight men. According to head coach Bert Apfelbaum, competition to make the boat will be fierce, and by racing time it should be a very fast boat. The sheer number of people trying to make the boat will force each lightweight to work that much harder.

The lightweight crew lost to Coast Guard twice last year, with one of those losses coming in the Dad Vail finals. The lightweights are eager to overcome last season's losses. Judging from the determination and experience of the seniors in the boat, they should be very successful once again. With so many returnees, and so many lightweights involved, a strong finish is expected.

The women's varsity crew, coached by Stacey Apfelbaum and captained by Jenny James '88 and Lou O'Brien '88 should follow up last year's bronze medal performance in the Dad Vails with another good season. The varsity women will have four returning letter winners available for the fall season, and will have all but one of last year's rowers present come spring time. James and O'Brien will lead senior Eliza Edwards and juniors Elizabeth Brown and Becky Brainard throughout the fall.

"Things are already going well," noted O'Brien. "Stacey is pushing us hard. We're working harder and pushing ourselves more than last year. Coming in third in the Dad Vails was quite an accomplishment for us, and with so much young potential we should do very well again."

Several additions to the crew program should contribute to a successful season. Two new coaches and quite a bit of new equipment have been added to the squad. Freshman coach Tom McClarence, a Boston University graduate, has already brought several new ideas to Trinity's program. Graduate assistant Meg Pietotte, a 1980 Trinity graduate, has taken over as coach of the women's novice team.

Work will soon begin on a new sixteen man rowing tank at Ferris Athletic Center. The tank should be in place by winter and will provide greater capacity for winter training than the old four-man tank. According to Muldoon, "The new tanks will allow us to get a lot more work done indoors, and we should come out looking very strong in the spring."

The combination of new coaches, new tanks and strong rowers should lead the Trinity crew team to a successful fall season and an even greater varsity season in the spring.

Women's XCountry Gears Up

by Susan Kinz
Tripod Sports Writer

Once again, the quads of Trinity College and the hills nearby are dotted with a tight pack of dedicated runners, the 1987 Trinity women's Cross Country team. While most people on the quad in the afternoon are enjoying the last of the summer sun's rays, these women are sweating through grueling miles, traversing the college course in preparation for the fall season ahead.

Although academic classes are only entering their third week, the runners have been in training for several months. Coach Alex Magoun stressed the importance of summer training to his runners last spring. As a result, the team covered hundreds of miles during the hot summer months. Individually, many of the returning runners put in close to fifty miles per week, in addition to swimming, biking, and weight training.

The team is now ready to push forward in their workouts, varying distance runs with mile interval workouts and speed drills. This fall, Coach Magoun will have the team concentrating on the importance of hill training. Rather than merely reaching the top of the hill, this year's team is driving forward past the hill's summit, striding for a faster recovery.

"It's this push forward past the top that's going to give us the edge over our opponents on the long, steep ascents," explained junior tri-captain Gail Wehrli. "When the other team stops, exhausted, we're going to be able to surge forward," added Coach Magoun.

In addition to the strength gained from intense training, the Lady Bantam runners can also look forward to a newfound strength; strength in numbers. The varsity team only lost one runner to graduation and has gained several promising sophomore and freshman runners.

Tri-captains, seniors Shana Pyun and Jennifer Elwell, and junior Gail Wehrli are ready to head the Lady Bantam racing pack this year. Returning seniors Amy Peck, Hillary Fazzone, Lucia Dow, Alex Miehos and Laura Vozelt, junior Sue Kinz and sophomore Elizabeth Hines will also make large contributions to the team's success.

The experience of the veteran runners, the strength of their training program and the numbers of runners add up to a powerful combination and what should be a successful season. Their first chance to test this combination will be Saturday, September 19 at the Vassar College Invitational. Coach Magoun, confident in his team, has predicted a victory for the women, promising them ribbons around their necks if they all race with the potential evident thus far in their workouts.

The College View Cafe Sports Scoreboard

THIS WEEK'S SPORTS SCHEDULE:

- TUESDAY
Women's Tennis — UHart 3:00 PM Home
- THURSDAY
Reid Hockey — UConn 7:00 PM Away
Women's Tennis — Wellesley 3:30 PM Away
- SATURDAY
Field Hockey — Bowdoin 2:00 PM Home
Volleyball — Emerson & Emmanuel 1:30 PM Home
Women's Soccer — Bowdoin 2:00 PM Home
Cross Country — Vassar Invitational 1:00 PM Away
Men's Soccer — Coast Guard 11:00 PM Home
Women's Tennis — Amherst 11:00 AM Home
Water Polo — Colby & Bates at Bates Away

FOOTBALL

Coach: Don Miller, 21st year (104-53-3)
Last Season: 5-3
Top Players:
*Wally Wroble, SR, FB;
*John MinisF-y, SR, O;
Don Freinrdj, M, SR, HR;
John Calcaterra, SR, HB;
K. J. Ghr, JR, QB;
Boo Slo, mgpr, SO, DP;
Sean McHugh, SR, LG;
Terry McNamara, SP, SE;
Tim Jensen, SO, K

Strengths: Excellent and experienced offensive line; competition for positions will intensify; play ability to consistently produce offensively

Weaknesses: Inexperience at defense and Quarterback positions; entire secondary graduated; no just months to 15; in mid to new slant-mark style

Outlook: It's up to the quarterback come together — GOOD

"Co-captains

Want to write sports for the Tripod?

Good Luck

TONIGHT IS $3 PITCHER NIGHT AT THE VIEW

Sports

Defense Questionable As Bants Prepare For '87

by Bill Charest and Chris Dickinson
Tripod Sports Writers

Seeking their eighth consecutive winning season, the Trinity football team began practices last week, culminating in double sessions this past weekend. Looking ahead to a schedule of balanced opponents, the team's first game on September 26 will be crucial as they face Bowdoin, who already will have a game under their belts. Coach Don Miller (21st year, 104-53-3) is optimistic, as the attitude at practices has been positive.

Coach Miller's squad returns with a seasoned offensive line that should continue to punch holes in the opponent's defense and effectively pass block and propel the running game. Co-captain John Morrissey '88 starts at right tackle, while center Scott Mitchell '89, right guard Tom Schaefer '90, left guard Sean McHugh '88, and left tackle Rich Mancini '90 comprise the rest of the unit.

Despite losing running backs Rich Nagy and Ted Shannon and quarterback Dan Tighe to graduation, the offensive backfield still looks strong. Co-captain fullback Wally Wrobel '88 (444 yds., 5.1 yds/carry, 5TDs) and halfback John Calcaterra '88 (only 15 carries in '86 due to injury) should take up the slack. They will be aptly aided by Don Fronzaglia '88 (37 receptions, 11.4 yds/reception, 1TD) who will be moving from wide-out to the halfback position, where he will share time with Calcaterra. Kevin Griffin '90 is the frontrunner for the quarterback spot and his running ability should add a new dimension to the Bants' offense.

The Bants' receiving corps looks solid as well. While the offense may not be as pass-oriented as in previous years, the receivers still comprise an integral part of the Trinity offense. Look for Fronzaglia, one of the NESCAC's toughest receivers, to come out of the backfield to make important catches. Replacing him at split end will be Terry McNamara '90 (17 receptions, 206 yds. as a freshman), one of the Bants' faster receivers. McNamara's speed could allow tight end Bob Ugolik '88 (2TDs) to be called upon for short and medium-range patterns.

Defense may be this season's questionmark for Miller's Bants as eight of the eleven starters have been lost to graduation. The defensive line plays an indispensable part in Coach Miller's 5-2-4 alignment. Returning on defense will be defensive end Bob Sickenger '90 (70 tackles, 2 sacks), left tackle Kevin Walsh '88, defensive end Mark Polinsky '88 (led the team with 4 sacks), end Dan Prochniak '89 and tackle Dave Hutchinson '88.

Graduation took its toll on the linebackers and secondary for the Bants, as all six of the starters are gone. Joe Yamin '89 (40 tackles in '86) will start at linebacker this season, while Tim Clair '90, and John Burke '88 compete for the other starting spot. In the secondary, Scott Semanchik '88 (2 INTs) moves from nickel back to a starting role at free safety. Tom Broderick '88 will see action at cornerback, along with Eric Grant '89, while Jim Siebert '88 will start at strong safety. This unit will undoubtedly become better with each game, as the players gain more experience.

The Bants fine tune their running game.

Photo by Meryl Levin

Special teams appear to be solid. Placekicker Tim Jensen '90 had a strong year in '86 (17-17 PAT, 6-8 FG), and looks to continue his success. John Calcaterra was one of the nation's best kickoff returners last year, ripping off more than 25 yards per return.

Unlike previous years, especially last season, injuries pose no major problem for the Bantams this season. This in itself will be a major factor as the Bantams prepare for their first contests knowing that they are working with the full squad.

In preparation for the season opener against Bowdoin on September 26, the Bants will travel to Vermont Academy to take on Middlebury College in a controlled scrimmage. The outcome of the scrimmage will act as a good gauge in determining how the Bants should fare over the rest of the season.

The key to the 1987 season for the Bants will be the adjustment of the veterans to a new quarterback and the maturation of the defensive units. Coach Miller is pleased with the dedication and hard work of both the freshmen and the returning players. On offense, the picture looks bright as the entire starting line will be returning. The questions on defense will soon be answered as the new starters continue to gain experience and adapt to their positions. 1987 looks to be a solid year for the Bants.

Men's Soccer Ready For Tough '87 Season

by Jeff Proulx
Tripod Sports Writer

Last year's Trinity men's soccer team was characterized by its determination, gutsy style of play and hustle. However, it will also be remembered for its one dimensional offense and the inability to break a recent streak of sub-par seasons. Working with primarily the same squad as last year, with a few noticeable exceptions, coach Robie Shults has developed a plan which should propel the team over the .500 mark.

In order to contend with the loss of three of last year's most essential team members, Shults has initiated a vigorous practice schedule that includes early morning runs and multi-practice weekdays and Saturdays. Shults believes that good old-fashioned hard work should give the team that extra edge.

The graduation of co-captains Chris Hyland and Peter Voudouris and the absence of last year's "outstanding freshman" Mike Murphy will force the team to adopt a more balanced offense. Hyland led the team in goals scored, and in the words of Coach Shults, "last year, when the other team was able to shut down Hyland, they were able to shut down the whole offense." Murphy, who has decided to take a year off from his studies will also be sorely missed.

Among those returning to the varsity squad are backs Mike Daly '88, Steve Ryan '89, Pete Denious '90, Nick Formissario '90 and Greg Stedman '89. Also returning are senior co-captains George Manthous and Durkin Barnhill and fellow midfielders Matt Gandal '89, John Ralston '89, and Scott Isaac

'89. Several of these players will also alternate as forwards, as will J.P. Marra '90. Sharing the goal-tending duties will be juniors E.G. Woods and Carl Pier.

Twenty freshman will also be vying for spots on the squad, many of whom have definite varsity potential. "We have a solid group of freshman who are trying to make the varsity team. We're very pleased with what we have," remarked a positive Shults.

For the first time in three years Trinity will also be fielding a J.V. team. K.J. Park, who runs Central

Services and played soccer for Central Connecticut State University, will coach the squad. The addition of the J.V. team should strengthen the team's depth by allowing Shults to keep more players, thereby bettering future Bantam squads.

The Bants' first match will be played September 19 as Trinity plays host to the perennially strong Coast Guard squad. This first match will be a real test for the Bants, but they will be well prepared by Coach Shults' rigorous new practice schedule.

Trinity Soccer looks sharp on defense.

Photo by Meryl Levin

SEE INSIDE FOR:
CROSS COUNTRY
WOMEN'S TENNIS
CREW
WATER-POLO
VOLLEYBALL
FIELD HOCKEY
EXTRA INNINGS
AND MORE!